MAYOR'S SON HEAT VICTIM

PEASLEE FINANCES PROBED

HENNIKER, N. H., May 28.—The mystery surrounding the slaying of Howard W. Peaslee, the wealthy toymaker, grows deeper day by day, and in spite of the arrest of "Silent Gene" Wood, the authorities are believed to be farther away from a plausible solution than ever.

Search for evidence to substantiate jealousy as the motive for the crime has caused the detectives working on the case to change their views and today an investigation of the slain toymaker's financial affairs was started. The new turn in the case has put an end to the town gossip of the love affairs of Wood and Peaslee.

PROBE FINANCIAL DEALINGS.

A short time previous to the murder Peaslee is reported to have sold a tract of woodland, for which he received a considerable amount of money. Trouble developed in the sale and the ultimate disposition of the money. This information reached the authorities after the arrest of Wood and promises to play an important part in subsequent developments in the case.

Three persons have been brought under suspicion in the inquiry into Peaslee's finances. Two of these are being closely watched and the whereabouts of the third is known. It is rumored that one and perhaps two

Sears, twenty-two, of No. 317 Saratoga street, East Boston, arraigned today in the East Boston court for assault on Joseph De-Granier, a motorman, was found guilty and sentenced to one month in the House of Correction. WASHINGTON, May 28.—President Wilson, it is expected, will select William A. Gaston of Boston as the fifth member of the Federal reserve Board. The selection of the fifth member will be next week.

Mrs. Hunnewell, Jr., Is Shaken by Fall

Mrs. Walter Hunnewell, Jr., one of the most popular of Boston society's young matrons, fell headlong in leaving her carriage at the Trinity place station, where she was to take a train out of town. Her dress was torn and she was shaken up.

In some manner her dress caught in the carriage door. She held a jewel box she carried and none of the gems were spilled out.

Mrs. Hunnewell was Minna Lyman. She wore a blue dress with black trimmings, long white gloves, which were ruined, a dark blue hat and a blue and white Milene ruche. Mrs. Hunnewell has a Summer cottage at Beverly.

Middlesex Hunt Club Hounds Arrive

The Warren Line steamship Michigan arrived in port today from Liverpool, having on board five thoroughbred fox hounds for Alexander Higginson of Lincoln, master of the hounds for the Middlesex Hunt Club. The fox hounds were purchased in England by J. E. Harvey at the Ruby hound sale in England, on May 8.

Heat Kills Farmer.

NEWBURYPORT, May 28.—Elisha Pearson, a farmer of Byfield, died from heat prostration in a field near his house.

VICTOR IN BIG GOLF TOURNEY

VERSAILLES, France, May 28.—Francis Ouimet of Boston, open champion of the United States, won the French amateur golf championship here today by defeating Henry J. Topping, another American, four up and three to play in the final round over the La Boulie links.

The young American played splendid golf throughout—the tournament and his form today made him a winner from the very start.

Topping, who defeated Jerry Travers, the American amateur champion yesterday, did not show the same good form, and gave his younger rival very little trouble.

OUIMET IN OLD FORM.

The championship here, which saw the best players of three countries—the United States, England and France—contesting, marked the complete return to form of the Boston star who less than a year ago defeated the great Vardon and the wonderful Ray, England's premier golfers in the American open.

In the course of the present tourney, Ouimet defeated Lord Charles Hope of England, last year's winner of the French title; Charles Palmer, the Englishman, who put Travers out of the Britis hamateur championship tourney, and Eric Apperly, the titlist of Australia.

The new French champion started out today against his countryman in a very businesslike fashion and before he had taken more than a dozen strokes it was evident that he was in the form that made him famous last Summer in his native land.

TOPPING PRACTICED HARD.

Topping has ben practicing here for more than a month and was more familiar with the coures than any of the invading golfers. His familarty, however, stood him in little stead. When the pair, followed by a large gallery, reached the turn Ouimet was four up and a top-heavy favorite for the honors.

The first half was played in the morning, and after an intermission the two Yankees came out for the final eighteen holes this afternoon.

The handicap was too much for Topping, as his rival never for a moment let up in his playing, and the match ended at the thirty-third hole with Ouimet 4 up and 3 to play.

Ouimet is the second American to win the French championship. The first was Charles W. Evans, Jr., of Chicago. Evans took part in the tournament that ended today, but fell by the wayside early.

The death of one man in Lowell and the prostration of Paul, the infant son of Mayor and Mrs. Curley, were results of the hot wave reported today.

The Lowell victim is Martin Kenney, fifty years, a trackman for the Bay State Street Railway Company. He collapsed while at work on Gorham street in Lowell. A pulmotor was secured, but Kenney failed to revive.

This is the eighth death caused in New England by the hot wave. There have been many prostrations. In some cases the heat drove victims to end their own lives.

The Mayor's baby now suffering from the heat is Paul, nine months old. He was overcome yesterday, when the mercury climbed to 93 degrees. Both Mayor and Mrs. Curley were naturally worried by the baby's condition. The Mayor remained at the house, No. 105 Mt. Pleasant street, Roxbury, through this morning. The cooler weather today brought a change for the better in the baby's condition.

CAUGHT BY SURPRISE.

The Mayor and Mrs. Curley have been planning to go to the shore for the Summer as soon as the older children are out of school. The early heat wave caught them by surprise, as it did other parents of school children.

The hot wave broke just in time to save greater mortality among a weather-weakened public. This noon the average temperature in Greater Boston was 12 degrees lower than at the same time yesterday.

Little breezes from the northwest kept the air moving and helped to make life more endurable.

The Weather Man says it is going to be cool tonight. The local forecast today was:

"Fair and cooler tonight. Friday fair, Moderate northwest winds."

Comparative temperatures today between Boston and other cities at 8 a. m. were: Boston 78, Chicago 66, New Orleans 76, New York 74, San Francisco 52, Washington 78.

Partly cloudy skies with a moderate westerly wind and a decreasing humidity will bring the temperature down to 86 or 88 at the highest, is the prediction of the forecaster.

Boston for the past two days has been the second hottest city on the weather map. At Richmond, Va., the temperature reached the 96 degree mark, one degree warmer than in Boston.

Seven other deaths in New England are:

Mrs. Bridget Doherty at Milford.
Matthew Drummey at Brockton.
Elisha Pearson at Byfield.
James F. Murphy at Salem.
Steve Mayor of North Walpole, N. H.
John Hopwood at Providence.
George Charpentier, ex-Mayor of Hartford.

There will be no issues of the Boston Evening AMERICAN on Saturday, May 30 (Memorial Day). The business offices will be open as usual for the reception of Classified and Display Advertisements.

For a complete account of Memorial Day events see the SUNDAY AMERICAN. Every Memorial Day sporting event in New England will be especially reported in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

CONAN DOYLE SEES END OF MILITANTS IN LYNCHING BEES

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the celebrated novelist, and his wife, photographed when they arrived at New York on the Olympic. Lady Doyle was relieved to learn that no militant suffragettes were at large in America.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, arriving on the Olympic, predicted a fatal ending to English militant suffragettes.

"If they don't take care, there will be a general lynching. The British public is about tired of their antics. Resentment will be shown by mob violence, and it would not surprise me if several of the wilder women were hanged. Men will not stand for arson and destruction forever, and the sensible women are of the same opinion.

"Women suffrage in England is an economical impossibility. England has practically two women for every man. What would become of a government thus dominated? Certainly give the educated woman, the woman who is a property holder or a taxpayer a vote, but how is one going to discriminate?

"As for the tactics of the militants I can say that if I were a millionaire and strongly opposed to woman suffrage the simplest way to work against their cause would be to support the militant movement. People are getting tired of all this window smashing, house burning and picture mutilating and our government, which is a pretty fair expression of public opinion, has come to the end of its patience.

"The hunger strike will be broken, I think. Food will be placed in their cells and if they refuse to take it and any of them should die as the result of it, it will be a plain case of suicide. No laws, no privileges have ever been obtained in England by coercion."

The distinguished author is accompanied by his wife. They gazed with interest at the skyscrapers in New York's skyline as the Olympic came up the bay. It is the first time he has been here since 1893, and the progress that has been made in building astonished him.

U. S. AND MEXICO UNITE ON PLAN; 6 MAIN POINTS

By LAURENCE TOD,
Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEDIATION HEADQUARTERS, CLIFTON HOTEL, Niagara Falls, Ont., May 28.—Agreement has been reached by the Mexican and American delegates on six important points in the mediation negotiations, it was learned today as the Latin-American envoys met in their forenoon conference. These points are:

1—Retirement of General Huerta from the provisional presidency.

2—Huerta will be given an opportunity to become a candidate at a new election if he feels justified in that course.

3—The Constitutionalists are to be allowed to make Carranza or any other man their candidate.

4—The land question is to be left to the new Mexican Congress, which will be put under a moral obligation to bring about a distribution to the peons.

5—There will be amnesty for exiled Spaniards and all factions of Mexican citizens.

6—The American flag is to be saluted on the order of a provisional president, to be chosen in a conference of all factions.

The success or failure of the negotiations hinges upon Huerta's decision as to the first point, that requiring his retirement.

The sixth point shows the mediators and delegates have not abandoned hope of having Carranza participate in the final plans for effecting peace in Mexico. His action on this point will lead to a later determination as to the method of selecting a provisional president and of providing for a disposition of the Federal and Constitutionalist armies during the period that must elapse before an election.

PLAN COMMISSION OF FIVE TO RULE.

The transfer of the executive power at Mexico City from the hands of General Victoriano Huerta to a provisional president and four cabinet ministers is planned. This talked-of body has often been referred to as a commission, or junta.

These five men would share equally the responsibility of putting into operation a program adopted at the conference here for the conduct as soon as practicable of new elections for president and members of congress. The five men would be neutral persons so far as political affiliations are concerned, but would be representative men, as nearly acceptable as possible to all factions in Mexico, including the Constitutionalists, and approved also by the American government.

Prompt recognition of the provisional government would be given by the United States.

Withdrawal of American troops is

KING 'FLOUTS' DURYEA AFTER DERBY VICTORY

LONDON, May 28.—All London is discussing today the "flouting" by King George of Herman B. Duryea, whose horse, Durbar II., won the English Derby yesterday.

Although His Majesty congratulated Duryea immediately after the race, the American was not invited to the dinner which the King gives to the members of the Jockey Club every Derby night. It is the rule that the owner of the Derby winner is a guest, though Richard Croker was not invited when his Orby won the big race. Duryea is well known in Boston and his wife was Ellen H. Winchester.

KING OFFERS HAND.

As Mr. Duryea smilingly went up the steps toward the King His Majesty advanced to meet him. King George put out his hand, which Mr. Duryea shook.

"I want to congratulate you, Mr. Duryea," said the King. "Your horse ran a splendid race and won it well. It must be all the more pleasant to you after the failure of your horse Sweeper II., two years ago. It was not a good race, but Dunbar won like the good horse he is.

"I believe your horse failed in France the other day," continued the King.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Duryea. "He did not get off at all well in that race, and this longer distance was all in his favor. I am pleased with him."

"I am sure you must be," returned the King, as he again shook hands with Mr. Duryea.

NOT ASKED TO DINNER.

Despite the King's seeming friendliness, Mr. Duryea was not invited to the Jockey Club dinner.

Mr. Duryea and his wife, an admirable sportswoman, who raced, with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney as partner, as "Mr. Roslyn," had dinner together in the grill room of the Berkeley Hotel, where they are stopping. With them was Sir Eric Loder, who married Gabrielle Ray. It is interesting to note that, in his moment of triumph the dinner cost scarce $10.

City News in a Nutshell

Fifteen hundred spectators saw "In the Fool's Bauble," presented by pupils of the Boston College High School in Boston College Hall. Leo G. Gaffney played Louis XI., King of France. The fourth performance will be repeated tomorrow night.

In the Quincy schools tomorrow will be observed as Grand Army Day. Details from patriotic societies will attend the exercises in the different buildings.

Students in the School of Fine Arts, Crafts and Decorative Design on Westland avenue, exhibited their work today. Drawings by Gladys Hildreth, Ruth Wheeler, Helen Copeland, Margaret Hasleton and Marion Green attracted commendation.

The management of the Boston Arena won a victory today when the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration ruled that the Arena's business is being carried on normally in spite of the strike declared by employes of the Arena. This enables the Arena to advertise for employes without saying there is a strike in progress.

A special train of eleven cars will bring the Lambs to Boston for their All-Star Gambol next Saturday. They come here from Worcester with 150 performers.

300 Fight Forest Fires at Sandwich

SANDWICH, May 28.—The first big forest fire of the season is burning in the woods between here, Forestdale and Hatchville, under a northwest gale blowing thirty-five miles an hour. About 300 men are fighting the fire on a line four miles long, trying to turn the flames away from Forestdale and down toward the big ponds.

Pretoria Arrives; Was Delayed by Fog

The Allan line steamer Pretoria arrived in port today from Glasgow, Scotland and Moville, Ireland, with 181 cabin and 167 steerage passengers. The Pretorian was delayed for three days, owing to the dense fog that prevailed in the ice track, during which time it was compelled to travel at half speed or less.

HASKELL TELLS OF NEW HAVEN'S 'HERALD' BONDS

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Much against my will I am constrained to write you about the news animadversions and editorial comments in the AMERICAN of that part of Mr. Mellen's testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission that referred to a certain "loan" of $300,000 made by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to the Boston Herald when I was the owner of that newspaper.

In your news columns it has been stated that the "loan" was made to me personally on my unsecured notes, and in the editorial columns there is not the slightest veneer of charity over the imputation that the consideration for the "loan" involved the surrender of the conscience of a newspaper that for over a generation was a leader in independence in American journalism.

Relying upon the spirit of fairness and justice animating the direction of Mr. Hearst's newspapers, of which I have intimate knowledge, I ask you to relieve both the Boston Herald, as it was under my ownership, and me personally, from a charge that is wholly unwarranted by the facts in the case, by the publication of an accurate statement of the transaction.

I acquired my initial interest in the Boston Herald at the beginning of 1904, nearly a year after Mr. Mellen had become president of the New Haven road.

ENDORSED MELLEN PLANS.

Having known Mr. Mellen in the Northwest when he was president of the Northern Pacific and having acquired confidence in his ability, farsightedness and genius as a railroad executive it was but natural that I had the Boston Herald favor and indorse the broad-gauged plans he announced for the improvement of the then deplorable railroad conditions in New England.

The railroad situation in New England at that time, the physical condition of the principal properties, the entanglement of the management with political cliques and the inconvenience suffered by the shipping and traveling public, were such as to make all public-spirited and progressive men receive with acclaim the program of rehabilitation and improvement that Mr. Mellen announced.

The panic of 1907 struck Boston a stunning and paralyzing blow. The newspaper business suffered immediately and severely from its effects. In the previous Fall I had assumed very heavy financial obligations by the purchase of the entire interest in the Herald of the one other large stockholder. A floating indebtedness on a new building and plant, which under ordinary circumstances would have been carried at my convenience, suddenly became a demand obligation, and payment was demanded. I was forced to devise a funding plan to take care of my own obligations and those of the paper.

This plan I perfected in the late Winter of 1907 in the form of a mortgage for $1,700,000, covering the entire property and good will of the paper, and evidenced by 1,700 bonds, each of the denomination of $1,000. The beginning of 1908 was not a very propitious time for selling bonds secured by a mortgage on a newspaper property, and I was obliged personally to canvass a list of friends and acquaintances who had ready money.

TOOK 300 BONDS.

On this list was Mr. Mellen. I approached him with my proposition, statements and figures, and asked him if he and his friends would take 300 of the bonds. He listened to my story with the sympathetic interest I expected, and eventually placed the 300 bonds I had requested him to take. The rest of the bonds were bought by individuals, the largest purchaser taking 329.

This funding plan was finally consummated about the first of June, 1908, or nearly four years and a half after I came to Boston and began the advocacy of what then seemed to be the most meritorious piece of transportation improvement that Boston had ever known. There was not the change of one iota in the policy of the Boston Herald after the purchase of the 300 bonds; and from that time until circumstances forced me to surrender the property in the Summer of 1910, neither Mr. Mellen or Mr. Byrnes nor any other person connected with the New Haven road, ever made a single request for either the publication or the suppression of any item of news or of any editorial comment.

The New Haven road purchased 5 per cent. gold bonds from the Boston Herald Company which were secured by a mortgage covering all of the assets of the paper. I paid the interest on the entire bond issue promptly, and exhausted my personal resources in protecting the securities from default, until combined circumstances forced my retirement two years later. Thus it is apparent that corporation bonds, duly paid for and delivered, were in the "mysterious envelope," and not my "unsecured notes."

Yours truly,
WILLIAM E. HASKELL.
Hotel Marseilles, New York City.

Train Ends Dispute

Answering his wife's charge of cruelty in her suit for separation, Arthur W. Barber of White Plains, N. Y., declared that she had been cruel also, teaching their two-year-old child to offer up this prayer nightly: "God bless mamma and make papa a better man."

"To have a good time" $10,000 was left to Mrs. Bella Knapp of New York, by Asher H. Caskill of Kansas City, who committed suicide here recently. Mrs. Knapp was a friend of his mother.

Mrs. Philip Priore was horsewhipping Constable Rose in a quarrel over a cow when a train came along and killed the cow.

Jessie and Lillian Glonsby, aged three and six respectively, sailed aboard the Celtic on the last half of a 6,000-mile journey with their mother's ashes. Mrs. Glonsby, who died in Oakland, California, wanted to be buried in Scotland. Her husband had the body cremated.

Marc Klaw Returns; Won a Mere $300

NEW YORK, May 28.—Marc Klaw of Klaw & Erlanger returned on the Olympic yesterday from a two months' trip abroad. Part of the time he spent motoring in northern Africa.

He visited Algiers and Tunis and on his return looked in on Monte Carlo, where he happened to win $300 in an evening's diversion. One of the newspapers magnified the sum to $50,000. This naturally brought an avalanche of letters from medicants of various classes. Some merely asked for small loans, others for donations to charities and one correspondent merely asked for the system used by Mr. Klaw in "breaking the bank."

HARVARD BOYS IN COURT FOR AUTO CRASHES

Harvard collegians, charged with reckless automobiling, engaged the attention of Greater Boston courts today.

The cases of Meredyth Whitehouse, Harvard junior and resident of expensive Dunster Hall, and of John W. Gateley of West Newton, charged with reckless operating their automobiles in a race on Central avenue, Weston, so that Gateley's car collided with a car driven by Mrs. Henry Eaton of Wayland, resulting in Mrs. Eaton's lingering a broken arm, were called again in Waltham District Court, but were continued to June 18 to accommodate Whitehouse. The latter's counsel, Ex-oCngressman Samuel L. Powers, urged that Whitehouse is in the midst of his examination finals.

Gateley was represented by Thomas F. Reddy of Boston.

The original complaint of exceeding the speed limit has been raised by Chief McAuliffe to the more serious one of reckless driving. Neither defendant has pleaded yet.

Whitehouse and Gateley were in court and the latter was accompanied by a Harvard College proctor to support his contention that it was necessary for him to be at his examinations.

Another Harvard student automobile case today was that of Junius A. Richards, twenty-one years, of No. 441 Beacon street, Back Bay, a collegian, who was charged before Associate Justice Ahearn in Roxbury District Court with operating an automobile so that the lives and safety of the public were endangered. He was placed on probation for one year.

On April 29 an automobile driven by Richards crashed into a milk wagon driven by George Story of No. 252 Massachusetts avenue. Story and Richards were taken to the City Hospital. Richards was unable to appear in court until today.

Tomorrow Owen B. Jones, a Harvard sophomore, son of a rich family of Lake Forrest, Ill., will be arraigned in Attleboro District Court in charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of nine-year-old Leo Blanchette, who was struck and killed last Tuesday by an automobile which Jones owns and was driving. Jones was accompanied at the time by Graham Aldis, another Harvard youth of wealthy family whose people are related to William A. Wood, the Lawrence manufacturer of woolens.

Munro Favors Big Council for Boston

Professor William Bennett Munro of Harvard, speaking before the Legislative Committee on Cities today, when asked his opinion of the "larger City Council" bill, replied:

"I would have gone ahead and made a good job of it. I believe in a large council, even larger than that provided for in the bill. Each district or section of the city should be represented, and there should be councillors elected at large." Professor Munro recommended the appointment of a recess committee for a comprehensive study of the charter situation.

Munsey Confers With Roosevelt

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 28.—Frank A. Munsey, author of the plan proposing to amalgamated the Republican and Progressive parties, conferred with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today at Sagamore Hill. George W. Perkins, chief financial prop of the Progressives, came out from New York with Mr. Munsey. Colonel Roosevelt declined to make any statement about the conference.

Gallivan Pays a Call on Governor

Congressman James A. Gallivan fresh from Washington paid Governor Walsh a social call today and held an impromptu reception of personal friends whom he found waiting in the executive suite for an audience with the Governor. WOMAN PASTOR SAYS SEX WILL LEAD CHURCHES

Women ministers will be the pastors of the country towns in the near future, according to the Rev. Margaret Barnard of Rowe, who has studied the problem of the country town and sees opportunities in smaller communities for women's work.

Women ministers will get nearer the home life of the lonely woman in country towns and be able to do a better work among the children, she feels.

WORK FOR CHILDREN.

Under woman's administration, the churches will become social centres for work during the week. Children will have more pleasures and interests planned for them by the coming country church under the rule of the woman minister.

The prejudice against woman preaching has subsided, and in many towns of Massachusetts women are enrolled as preachers. Dr. Barnard has been twelve years in her present pastorate, and knows the country town well and how to interest men, women and children in the changed work of the country church.

She added: "When I say women, I realize the whole aspect of the country church has changed. The old methods of getting people to church have passed away.

"Today you must make the church in the country town the centre for all kinds of work. There is a larger work to be done with the home life with women and children.

"In developing this home life, women ministers will have larger responsibility. I would not go so far as to say that the country town will not have any men ministers, but in the future the minister must be more a leader than a preacher, and a woman than a man.

MOTHERS WILL MEET.

"The interest to be taken in the children of rural communities will multiply with the various agencies to be followed out. The country churches are to be open all the time. Mothers will meet there and discuss the questions of home life and training. Children will be gathered into the churches during the week for some special line of work. Women will be better adapted to carry on the changed work of the country churches, because that work will more concern the work of the home and the children."

FORESTERS OF STATE VOTE TO MEET IN BOSTON

SPRINGFIELD, May 28.—Boston will be the meeting place of the next annual convention of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

An American Talk to Its Readers

How We Have Learned About Good Shoes

¶Every man and woman in and around Boston should know a lot about shoes—about styles and about makes—and most of them do. But few who are footwear-wise realize where they got their shoe sense. Ask any man you meet how he can, without hesitation, give you the names of a number of shoes that have become practically standard.

¶Chances are he cannot trace his knowledge back to its original source. But it is a law of psychology that "a fact lingers in the mind long after the incident out of which it grew is forgotten."

¶It is not to be wondered at, then, if one fails to recall the medium through which the first impression was gained.

¶There is hardly a person in Boston who is lacking in specific shoe education. Even growing children have their shoe preferences, and their likes and dislikes are considered by indulgent parents.

¶Now, where did Boston's population learn so much about shoes? The answer is simple: Through Reading Shoe Advertising.

¶Advertising has developed the shoe sense of everybody who can read the English language intelligently. It has stripped shoe manufacturing of its secrets. It has driven the "paper sole" out of the market. It has taught the public how shoes are made—of what they are made.

¶Shoes used to cost from $5 to $15 a pair. And the best the old shoemakers could do—working early and late—was to turn out a few pairs in a week. This made prices high without adding much to durability or quality, while the shapes were ungainly—their appearance clumsy.

¶Now you can choose from a score of lasts. There are a variety of styles from which a selection can be made, and it is the truth that Americans wear better and more graceful shoes than any other nationality in the world.

¶The demand for good shoes — created by advertising — stimulated the inventiveness of New Englanders and they devised machinery that duplicates—more rapidly and more accurately — every movement of the old-fashioned shoemaker.

¶The best of leather and the best of "findings" are used. So much expensive labor is saved that substitution of inferior materials is unknown among reputable manufacturers.

¶It is almost impossible nowadays to buy a pair of "poor" shoes—certainly not from a reputable dealer who advertises. The highest grade footwear can be had by everybody. Shoe discomfort has been dispelled by advertising.

¶And the American has been an active participant in the dissemination of shoe facts among Bostonians. The advertisements of prominent Boston shoe dealers and national shoe manufacturers are frequent features of its advertising columns.

¶So it is that shoe dealers who have good shoes to sell at fair prices find the American's family of 400,000 readers responsive to their advertising.

¶Here are the names of shoe merchants and shoe manufacturers who have contributed to the shoe knowledge of American readers during the past year:

TO PROBE POLICE AID TO BECKER IN MEETING FRIDAY

NEW YORK, May 28.—District Attorney Whitman and Police Commissioner Woods, according to plans today, will have a conference Friday to go over in detail the activities of certain members of the police force in the defense of Charles Becker, and in the effort to secure a stay for the four gunmen who were executed for Herman Rosenthal's murder.

It was announced following the conviction of Becker that the District Attorney would make an inquiry into the testimony of policemen who appeared for the defendant, certain features of their testimony not being in accordance with the facts as they have been presented to Mr. Whitman. Commissioner Woods has now interested himself in the matter, and it is understood to be at his suggestion that Friday's conference is to be held.

Whitman has decided to drop the case against Jack Sullivan (Jacob Reich), known as the "newsboy king," who was accused in the Becker case. Whitman feels it would be impossible to secure a conviction.

Whitman, in accordance with his statement made at the time, also intends now to go to the bottom of alleged police activity in framing up the testimony which was presented in the effort to secure a stay for the condemned gunmen, and in this also he will have the support of Commissioner Woods. Neither official will discuss the matter today, but it would surprise no one at either police headquarters or the District Attorney's office if indictments of several police officers for perjury should be handed down in the near future.

LOCATE COOPER IN TWO PLACES AT SAME TIME

WORCESTER, May 28.—Several new and startling developments are looked for today when the trial of Daniel J. Cooper of Upton for the alleged slaying of Alfred G. Bradish on October 4, 1913, was resumed in the Superior Court. A new turn has been given the case by the conflicting alibis of two witnesses who testified they saw Cooper at the same time in different places.

George Jenkins of Hopedale, a timekeeper, furnished the first alibi by swearing that Cooper was in Hopedale for a position at the time he had been supposed to be in Upton.

Mrs. Cooper supplied the second alibi by swearing that from early morning until afternoon of the day of the murder her husband was not out of her sight, and could not have been with Bradish in the dense woods where the State charges Cooper confessed to having killed the man of whom he was jealous.

The last three sessions of the court saw more than a score of witnesses follow in quick succession to the stand. With but few exceptions they gave testimony, both for State and defence, to bear out the contention of the latter that Cooper was not normal mentally. Several of them told of strains of insanity in the family.

Drandwicz Guilty in Trunk Death Case

NEW YORK, May 28.—Marcel Drandwicz, one of the three men indicted in connection with the "Pitt street trunk murder mystery," has been found guilty in the first degree. Drandwicz and two others lured Ivan Morgenwicz into house on the East side, robbed him, then placed the body in a trunk.

Offer to Settle Wakefield Strike

Officials of the Heywood Brothers and Wakefield Company of Wakefield today, through the State Board of Arbitration, renewed their offer to the strikers to return to work and to settle the differences by means of wage conferences. The new offer is substantially the one rejected a week ago by the strikers.

No. 25 Attention, Mayor Curley.

If you had made as good contract for the people of Boston with the Electric Light Company as the city of Birmingham, Ala., made with its Electric Light Company, Boston would save about one million one hundred and twenty-six thousand dollars during the period of the contract which you wish to foist upon Boston. This great sum, saved by the city, would give more than ONE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED WORKMEN A FULL YEAR'S EMPLOYMENT.

Would you have been elected Mayor, Mr. Curley, if you had told the people of Boston that you considered the 12 per cent. dividends of the Edison Electric Light Company more sacred than the bread and butter of the clerks, the laborers, the police, the firemen, the nurses, the matrons employed by the city, whom you have reduced or discharged, or more sacred than the pleasure and health which the citizens obtain from their parks and public buildings which your FALSE economy tends to cripple?

G. A. R. Regrets Wilson Can't Speak

NEWARK, N. J., May 28.—The department of New Jersey, Grand Army of the Republic, has sent a letter to President Wilson, expressing profound regret "that exacting duties of your high office are such as compel you to decline to address those who will be assembled on Memorial Day, at Arlington."

FIRST WIFE OF GAMBLER WINS COURT FIGHT

Mrs. E. Josephine Geisler of Weymouth loses the fight in which Margaret Emma Geisler of Philadelphia sought to establish herself as the widow of the late Walter J. Geisler of Weymouth. Mrs. E. Josephine Keisler was unable to tell the master in the case where her marriage certificate is, having, she declared, lost it.

E. Josephine Geisler was so closely identified with Geisler's gambling operations, according to the master, that she knew of his character and career. There was no evidence of any divorce having been secured either by Margaret Geisler or by her husband.

The master states that Geisler was clearly shown to be a gambler, possibly a professional one.

He was the son of John Geisler of Philadelphia, a wholesale butcher, and after his father's death he carried on the business until 1895. On January 17, 1877, the master finds, he was married to Margaret Emma Megonegal. There were two children born and one, Herman Wilmot Geisler, now lives with his mother in Philadelphia. Geisler left his wife in 1895.

Mrs. Havemeyer's Aigrettes Are Seizzd

NEW YORK, May 28.—That the customs laws do not differentiate between the living and the dead was the experience of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer, who returned on the Olympic yesterday with the body of Mrs. Emily de Loosey Havemeyer, mother of Mrs. Havemeyer, who died in Paris. In one of the trunks of the late Mrs. Havemeyer customs men discovered hats trimmed with aigrettes which were sent to the Public Stores.

Bearded Woman Shown in Paris

PARIS, May 28.—"I'm going to surprise you," said Professor Tuffier, when introducing to his colleagues at the Academy of Medicine a person wrapped in ample garments. Then he revealed a sturdy individual with a thick black beard reaching to the waist. The personage was really a woman who possessed all the feminine attributes until the age of forty, when she began to assume a masculine aspect. She developed muscles like a boxer.

'JUST A BABY WITH HOE,' SAYS GIRL'S MAID

NEW YORK, May 28.—Miss Sullivan, who is suing Arthur I. Hoe, son of the millionaire printing press manufacturer, for $225,000 for breach of promise, collapsed on the witness stand again today, and her colored maid, Jennie Hodges, took the stand in her stead and gave vivid testimony of the acquaintance between Hoe and Miss Sullivan.

She said Hoe once gave Miss Sullivan $500 to get luncheon, and told how Hoe and Miss Sullivan used to have pillow fights in the girl's apartments.

Mr. Towns, counsel for Miss Sullivan, was trying to show she was only a child at the time she met Hoe, and called Miss Hodges for this purpose.

JUST A BABY.

"Describe Miss Sullivan's appearance when you first went to work for her?" asked Mr. Towns.

"She was just like a baby and wore shootop dresses."

Q.—What caused you to form this opinion of her? A.—Well, she threw pillows at me, made me stand on chairs and showered expensive perfumes and powders on me. Sometimes she made me look as though I had buried my head in a barrel of flour. I didn't think that a grown woman would act like that.

Q.—When Mr. Hoe, whom you knew first as Smith and then as Hanley, would call, how would Miss Sullivan act toward him? A.—Oh, she'd throw pillows at him, too.

Q.—Where did all this take place? A.—Sometimes in the drawing rooms and sometimes in the bedrooms. The pillow fights usually lasted about ten minutes. Mr. Hoe would embrace Miss Sullivan.

Q.—You mean he kissed her? A.—I never saw him actually kiss her, but from the position his arms were in around her neck and on her shoulders anybody could see that he had kissed her or was just about to do so.

Q.—Did you ever see anything wrong in Miss Sullivan's conduct? A.—No, sir. Miss Sullivan was most always in negligee when Mr. Hoe called, but she was ladylike and refined, too.

EVERYBODY HUNGRY.

Q.—Did you ever see Mr. Hoe give her any money. A.—Yes, indeed. I did. I remember one day in particular. Miss Sullivan was looking kind of downhearted, and there wasn't any money in the house. In fact, we were all very hungry. Mr. Hoe called, and when she told him, he gave her $500 to get some lunch.

Q.—Was Miss Sullivan generous when she had money? A.—Yes, sir. She lived like a little queen. Her carriage hire sometimes came to $40 a day and her automobile hire $30 a day. Her table was always filled with the best—filet mignon, squabs and champagne.

Q.—Did she ever appear worried? A.—At times she did. She would bite her finger nails and often was restless in her sleep.

Miss Sullivan broke down in the midst of her testimony, crying:

"Mr. Hoe took my good name. I don't want his money. I want my name back again."

Miss Sullivan's dramatic exclamation came impulsively at the end of heckling at the hands of William H. Hamilton, counsel for Mr. Hoe. He tried his best to make her admit damaging statements but she was ready with an explanation at every turn.

Immediately after Miss Sullivan had been excused from the witness stand William J. Daley, her cousin with whom she lived at the time she met Hoe, was called. He is a short, stout man and appeared extremely nervous.

HOE GAVE HER MONEY.

Daley testified he had driven Miss Sullivan in an automobile to a subway station and had waited on the street while she entered the subway. She came back with her hands full of bills of large denominations.

Daley admitted that every time he went to Hoe for Miss Sullivan, Hoe gave him money.

"How much in all? he was asked.

"About $7,000," he said.

Daley acknowledged he was taking money from Miss Sullivan at the same time. He said she referred to Hoe as a "fool" occasionally.

Miss Jean L. Towns, counsel for Miss Sullivan inquired about Hoe's relations with William A. Burr, once fiance of Miss Sullivan.

"Hoe told me," said the witness, "that he'd like to chuck the whole thing on Burr. When I introduced Burr to him and Burr told about financial troubles in building a theatre at White Plains, Hoe asked him if he loaned him (Burr) $25,000, would he put the girl (meaning Miss Sullivan) in an insane asylum."

FEAR GIRL DIED WITH YOUTH IN POND AT LYNN

With Arthur F. Sprague, nineteen, drowned by the capsizing of his canoe in Flax Pond, Lynn, the police fear that a girl companion also went to her death. Search is being continued today for another body and reports of any girl being missing from home are also sought.

Sprague lived at No. 479 Western avenue, Lynn. He was inexperienced in the handling of a canoe, but this did not prevent him from hiring one at the pond and inviting several young women in turn to go with him. Many refused because of his known inexperience with the craft.

He paddled to the shore at Euclid avenue, where he was heard to invite other girls out with him. Ten minutes later pedestrians heard shrieks from Sprague and saw him with his capsized canoe struggling in the choppy water about fifty feet from shore. He sank before a boat could be put out to save him.

Grapplers recovered the body about an hour after the capsizing and searched for hours for a possible girl companion. Sprague had asked so many girls that the police believe one of them might have accepted.

NURSE MAY DIE FROM BEATING THIEF GAVE HER

Miss Mary Sullivan, a nurse at Dr. Cousens' hospital in Waltham, is in a dangerous condition at the hospital today as a result of being knocked down by a thug who seized her pocketbook and ran. The thief got $40.

Miss Sullivan is Dr. Cousens' best surgical nurse, and was attending a patient, upon whom an operation was recently performed, on Cherry street, West Newton.

About 400 yards away, a circus is located. Miss Sullivan was out in the evening, when a man approached her from behind. She turned to look just as the man struck her with some weapon behind the left ear, and she dropped, unconscious.

When she partially recovered consciousness, the man was gone. She rose painfully to her feet and staggered to the home of former Mayor Hatfield of Newton. Mrs. Hatfield telephoned the police, and the girl was sent in an ambulance to the Waltham Hospital of Dr. Cousens.

WOMEN COME TO THE DEFENCE OF 'GENE' WOOD, ACCUSED IN PEASLEE DEATH MYSTERY

DECLARE SUSPECT INNOCENT

more arrests will be made before the end of the week. One of the suspects is said to be a woman.

It became known today that several persons, natives of Henniker, claim to have seen a man and woman walking along the railroad tracks on the night the murder was committed. This was reported to the police, who are searching for the pair. While it is believed neither the man nor woman was concerned in the case, it is thought they may be able to throw some light on the mystery.

Mrs. Eva L. Osgood, a neighbor of Peaslee, and Mrs. Hattie Annis, proprietor of the boarding house in which Wood lived, both of whom testified at the preliminary arraignment of the prisoner at Bradford, in exclusive interviews with an AMERICAN reporter today declared they believed Wood innocent.

WOMEN DEFENDED WOOD.

Mrs. Osgood declared that facts have been brought to her attention since the hearing on Tuesday which convinced her that Wood is not the man responsible for the death of the toymaker.

Mrs. Annis said she saw Wood in his room at 9.10 o'clock on the night Peaslee was slain, and declared that she did not believe he could have shot the victim and reached her house in so short a time. Mrs. Osgood and Mrs. Annis are two of the State's principal witnesses.

Mrs. Osgood filed a petition for divorce against Clarence W. Osgood of Henniker on September 29, 1913, on the grounds of extreme cruelty. In his reply Osgood named both Wood and the dead man. Attorney Joseph Donigan, counsel for Wood, is reported to be working on this end of the case, in the hope of disproving the testimony given by witnesses at the opening hearing.

Morrison Peaslee, son of the slain toymaker, has been appointed administrator of his father's estate by Judge of Probate Charles R. Corning of Merrimac County. He will have the power to open the safe in the Peaslee home, the key of which has been lost and which is believed to contain the toymaker's will. The authorities are also looking to the will to aid them in solving the mystery.

SCOFFS AT LETTER.

"I am thoroughly convinced," said Attorney Donegan in Concord, "that my client is innocent. As I am a lawyer, though, I would not make this statement unless my personal convictions were backed up by tangible proof and evidence. I will admit that I already have enough evidence to prove to myself that he did not murder Peaslee, and I do not believe he will ever be indicted by any grand jury.

"Of all the ridiculous claims I ever heard in my life, the claim of Miss Barnes and of Attorney General Tuttle that there was any similarity in the letter written by Wood, which had been so carefully cherished by Miss Barnes, and the black hand letter, that is the superlative. Why, they were about as much alike as a printed page and a copy book. I attach no importance whatever to the 'Black Hand' letter, as far as my client is concerned, and I do not believe any jury will, either.

"Even if this letter entered into the matter at all, it must be remembered that the most natural thing in the world for any one who wanted to throw suspicion on any one for having committed a crime, would be to write a letter employing a word or phrase known to have been used by the other. Such a phrase, "Crook work," used in the "Black Hand" note, is said to have been. Miss Barnes testified that Wood often used it. Well, so does about everybody else in Henniker. In fact, it is one of the most usual of their colloquialisms.

HINTS AT ARRESTS.

"My business in Concord has made it impossible for me to give up my time to Woods' case until the first of the week, but I shall then go to Henniker and camp there until I find out what I want to know. If my investigations hinge about what I believe they will, I shall most certainly ask that other arrests be made. I should feel it my duty to do so, not only for the sake of my client, but in the interests of justice."

Two new witnesses of vital importance have been found by the AMERICAN reporters at work on the mystery. They are Mrs. Fred W. Shelton and Guy Little. Little places the exact time of the shot which killed Peaslee as 8:50. This favors Wood, for the government claims the time of the shot was 8:45. Wood was back at Henniker square, a good fifteen minutes' walk from the scene of the murder, at 9 o'clock.

"I heard the shot just as I went into my house," said Little. "I looked at the clock and it was just 8:50."

The story of the other witness, Mrs. Shelton, is even more important, for she met a man—perhaps the actual murderer—on a bridge 500 yards from the Peaslee home, at 8:30 on the night of the murder. He was a stranger to her. She says:

SAW STRANGER ON BRIDGE.

"I had been to town, and stopped at Jennie Keyes' home for an hour. It was about half-past eight when I reached the bridge. A man was just stepping on it on the other side. We passed in the middle. He was a stranger to me, tall, well built, with prominent shoulders, and a head that seemed to shrink between his shoulders. He was smoking a pipe. I never knew Wood."

Those who believe "Silent 'Gene" Wood innocent of the crime with which he is charged are in the majority here today. Howard C. Peaslee, the murdered man, had a daughter, a Mrs. Parmenter, living in West Hopkinton. J. A. Parmenter, this daughter's husband, said:

"I believe Wood is innocent. So does my wife. We believe this in spite of the fact that Mr. Peaslee had told us if anything happened to him to look out for Wood. We don't believe Wood did this."

The man against whom suspicion is beginning to turn was one of several whose enmity toward Peaslee was a matter of gossip.

WOOD HAS CONFIDENCE OF AN INNOCENT MAN,' DECLARES LANDLADY

Mrs. Hattie Annis, who conducts the boarding house at which Wood stopped, said in her interview with the AMERICAN reporter:

"Gene Wood talked over Mr. Peaslee's murder with me last Saturday and Sunday before his arrest. I also gave him the papers and he read about it. He said: 'Isn't this terrible? A man must have an awful grudge to do a thing like that.'

"Gene had boarded and lodged at my house for a year and a half. I found him industrious, easy going and quiet. I don't think he is any more guilty of that crime than I am, and I hope they will free him.

"He has a mother and sister at Hillsboro. He used to speak to me about his mother and said he ought to go down and see her oftener. He paid punctually. He was never loafing around. He was willing to work at anything to make a dollar.

"After he got his position with Miss Ida Barnes we used to twit him about her. We used to ask him when he was going to marry her. Just for fun we used to say: 'She has a lot of money and would be a good catch.' Gene simply laughed and slyly replied that there was no danger of such a thing.

HEARD NO THREATS.

"I think he liked Miss Barnes but I never heard him say anything about marriage intentions. He always spoke highly of her and her folks and said she was an able business woman.

"I never heard him make any threats against Mr. Peaslee. Whenever he was under the influence of liquor he was more talkative. I heard him say a few times, when he had been drinking, he didn't like Mr. Peaslee very well.

"On the night of the murder he had supper about 6 o'clock with the other men. After supper he sat on the porch with some of the boarders for quite a while. Then he started off with Charles McDonald. I went to visit a neighbor. I returned shortly after 9 o'clock and the neighbor's little girl came as far as the door with me.

"In passing Gene Wood's room I noticed him standing there and right away he went to bed. That was between 9:10 and 9:15 and surely not later than 9:15, as I looked at my clock before going up stairs.

"THIS IS TERRIBLE."

"The next morning he had breakfast as usual at 6 o'clock and worked hard all day unloading coal at the depot. He came home for supper and sat down and talked with the men as usual. Saturday night they had him over examining him at the Henniker Hotel.

"Sunday morning, when he got up, he came into the parlor. I asked him if he wanted to read about the case. He said he did. He took the papers and read about it. He said: 'This is terrible.' He said the same thing when I talked with him about the case Saturday evening.

"He was in the kitchen washing his hands, just about to have dinner on Sunday at 1 o'clock when the sheriff came after him. Gene, when told that he was wanted, simply stretched out his hands for the handcuffs without a word.

"They took him to the hotel across the street, kept him there for hours and then took him to the Concord jail. He didn't seem a bit afraid. He seemed to have the confidence of an innocent man and they tell me he was just as fearless in court."

MRS. OSGOOD SAYS SHE HAS NEW FACTS FOR PEASLEE PROBE

Mrs. Eva L. Osgood, one of the State's two principal witnesses at the preliminary arraignment of Wood, declared she thought Wood was innocent. She said:

"Things have come to my attention since the hearing at Bradford on Tuesday which I think ought to be called to the attention of counsel for one side or the other.

"My husband and I are not living together. My husband is in Fitchburg, Mass.

"I told Morrison Peaslee: 'Morrison if you think I can help you any in this affair, I will be glad to give you my husband's address, but he is too far away to bother with.'

"I gave him the address. He said he and his brother, Shirley, would look it up.

"I saw Mr. Peaslee go past my house about 8:30 o'clock on the night of the murder in his carriage on the way home from the village. He lives up the road, three houses away. Shortly after he went up, his son, Morrison, and the latter's wife and baby drove past in another carriage. They had been to the village too.

"I was sitting in the swing in the rear of my house. My children were playing about there, and Ernest Greenwold, a neighbor, who is about nineteen, was playing with them.

HEARD LOUD REPORT.

"Suddenly I heard a loud report and I walked through the house to the front and out to the road. I walked as far as Mrs. Henry Matthews' house, next to mine. On my right, in the field, I heard something crackle, and looking, saw the form of a man. He must have been not more than thirty feet in the field. It was too dark to see anything but his form. I don't know what direction he took."

WOMAN PLANS FIGHT ON PARK FLOWER CHARGE

Mrs. Florence Bresnahan of No. 290 Talbot avenue, Dorchester, was still ill today, the result, it is believed by many, of her distressing experience last Friday, when she and her two children were bundled into a patrol wagon by the police because she was suspected of picking flowers in Franklin Park.

Her case was continued the next day until yesterday. When she was expected to appear then, it was learned that she was too ill, and the flower-picking case was again continued until June 4.

HUSBAND PICKED FLOWERS.

When seen at her home in Dorchester, Mrs. Bresnahan appeared to be quite used up and unable to talk. Her husband, who is a master plumber with an office at No. 41 Bickerstaff street, Back Bay, and who accompanied his wife and children in their ride to the police station in the patrol wagon, said:

"We have engaged counsel to fight this case for us in the courts. I am determined to spend my last dollar, if necessary, to secure the exoneration of my wife from this outrageous charge.

"Things have come to a pretty pass when a man with his wife and children cannot walk through a public park with a few flowers in their hands without being arrested by the police and hustled into a patrol wagon.

"So far as I know, the police do not claim to have seen any of my family picking the flowers.

"I do not know on what they can base their charges. I plucked the flowers myself on Wellington Hill, Mattapan, earlier in the day, and we were simply walking home through Franklin Park when the officer swooped down upon us and cried, 'Here, you, where did you get those flowers?' I told him, but he didn't seem to believe me. 'Give them to me,' the officer demanded.

"I started to explain, but he wouldn't listen. When he started to put the family in the wagon I asked him what we should do with the baby carriage. 'I don't give a damn,' he said and pushed it to one side.

"I haven't seen the carriage since. I wouldn't go into the park again, if I never saw it. They might arrest me for being a citizen of Boston, who knows?

BABY IS AFFECTED.

"My wife hasn't been able to do anything since her nervous upset, occasioned by the incident. John, our boy of four, is all unstrung over the event and the doctors said that he had a weak heart. The excitement was too much for him.

"Baby Katherine hasn't eaten hardly a thing owing to her mother's illness. She is a nursing infant, and the mother's weakened condition has been such that the baby wouldn't eat. In case my wife is exonerated from this charge against her, I shall bring suit for false arrest and injury to my family's health.

"It is high time the people of this city had a little consideration at the hands of the law."

Mrs. Florence Bresnahan and her baby Katherine, six months old. The mother was too ill to appear in court, as a result of her being carried, with the child, in a patrol wagon. Mrs. Bresnahan was charged with picking flowers in Franklin Park.

My, but Skinny Feels Good, for the Boss Has Got Married

NEW YORK, May 28.—Noticed the happy expression on Skinny Shanner's face these days? Well, there's a reason.

Tom McNamara, creator of "Us Boys," has gone and got married. His bride was Miss Bertha Bartholomew. Although there was a peculiar combination of thirteens connected with the wedding, neither bridegroom nor bride is doing any worrying.

Their marriage license was numbered 13,313, and they were married on Friday, the 23d, at No 319 West Seventy-ninth street. The total of the house number is thirteen. As they were leaving the house after the ceremony a black cat crossed their path.

Mr. and Mrs. McNamara are receiving congratulations today at their new home, No. 562 West One Hundred and Ninety-first street.

PLAN COMMISSION OF FIVE TO ADMINISTER MEXICO GOVERNMENT

expected by the Mexican delegates to follow as a matter of course as soon as the new government is installed.

While there may be no formal declaration on the subject, the Mexican delegates expect a tacit understanding to be reached that the United States will regard as legal the financial transactions of the present Mexican congress.

U. S. HOLDS SHIP THAT BROUGHT HUERTA ARMS

VERA CRUZ, May 28.—The Hamburg-American liner Bavaria, which, with the Ypiranga, a German steamer, landed guns, barbed wire and millions of rounds of ammunition for Huerta at Puerto Mexico, was held here today by the American port authorities. Meanwhile General Funston awaited instructions from Washington.

Immediately upon her return to this port without the Ypiranga, the Bavaria was seized by the Americans, who demanded her manifest from the German captain. He failed to produce the document, at first explaining that it was lost, but later declaring the Mexicans of Puerto Mexico took it from him.

The Huerta arms and ammunition were said here to have been taken by the Federals to Cordoba.

The cargoes of the Ypiranga and the Bavaria were said to be the largest shipment of arms and ammunition ever sent into the anti-American country.

The Bavaria, on Saturday, landed 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition, many rifles and 3,321 rolls of 30 miles of barbed wire, according to General Funston's advices.

The Ypiranga landed her munitions yesterday, it is said. This included 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition, rifles and 250 rapid fire guns. Mexican Federals took charge of all the munitions and removed them to Cordoba.

CARRANZA TO NAME ENVOY IN 24 HOURS

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Within twenty-four hours General Carranza will submit the name of his representative to the mediation conference at Niagara Falls to Secretary Bryan. This was learned on high Constitutionalist authority today, following a conference between Secretary Bryan, Judge Douglas and John A. Land. Carranza representatives will not be compelled to agree to any stipulations in advance of a conference with the other mediators.

Judge Douglas announced just before going into conference with Secretary Bryan that "a representative of General Carranza will be made an official envoy to the Niagara conference within the next twenty-four hours."

Douglas brought with him a note from Carranza indicating the attitude of the Constitutionalists toward mediation. He refused to divulge the nature of this communication. The fact that Carranza is willing to become a party to mediation changes the entire aspect of what appeared yesterday to be a serious problem in the pacification of Mexico. According to officials, this is the strongest representation that could possibly have been made to bring about peaceful conditions in Mexico.

It is believed that, should the internal and foreign problems be left out of the peace parley for the present, other matters which the mediation board is considering will be subjects of conversations in which the Constitutionalists will be glad to participate.

BLANQUET THREATENS TO BETRAY DICTATOR

NEW YORK, May 28.—Mediation will fail, and General Carranza will be made President of Mexico before peace comes, to that harassed country, according to Luis Cabrera, who has himself been put forward as a candidate for President.

"I could not accept," he says. "General Carranza MUST be the next President of the Mexican republic. There will never be peace in Mexico until he is. The Constitutionalists will not lay down their arms until their cause is won and until their leader, upon whom alone they can rely, is at the temporary head of the government."

Mr. Cabrera is one of a party of Mexicans here. To them from Mexico has come secret word that General Blanquet has threatened to surrender Mexico City and Huerta to Villa, as he surrendered Madero to Huerta.

Relations between Huerta and Blanquet are seriously strained. This is taken as explaining Huerta's proposed flight. Should Huerta flee, Blanquet would take the reins, keep order with a firm hand, and invite Villa to a conference under the protection of an armistice. A combination between Villa and Blanquet would cut the ground from under the Niagara Falls mediators.

Mr. Cabrera is at revolutionary headquarters here, having just returned from Sonora. He says the mediators representing Huerta at Niagara Falls really represent the landed, wealthy classes in Mexico, and not the peons whom President Wilson seeks to aid. Discussing the mediation plan, Mr. Cabrera said:

"The mediation scheme is a vague, romantic, philanthropic enterprise on the part of the A-B-C, who think they must reach out a helping hand to save a sister republic when they believe to be under the lion's power. If they had any definite scheme, or had gone to the conference with any definite purpose, there might be hope for its success. But in the present circumstances it will be well nigh impossible for them to satisfy the majority of the Mexican people.

Just Apply This Paste And the Hairs Vanish

(Beauty Notes)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to go through life with a face disfigured by a fuzzy growth, for if she will apply a plain delatone paste to the objectionable hairs for two minutes, then rub it off, every trace of hair will vanish. To make the paste, mix some water with powdered delatone. After the paste is removed, the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. Better results are obtained if the delatone is purchased in an original package.

HENRY SIEGEL, BACK FROM EUROPE, DENIES ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

©INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Henry Siegel, merchant and banker under indictment, returned to New York yesterday on the White Star Line steamship Olympic, on which he hurriedly sailed a few weeks ago.

He was eager to look at a newspaper, and as soon as one was given to him by a reporter he glanced quickly through it. His first comment was, "Oh, they are trying to set J. P. Morgan into trouble, too."

He said that he had gone abroad to see his daughter, Lady Julia Cavendish, and his granddaughter, who was ill, and that he had no intention of making an effort to escape to Germany in order to evade extradition.

"I have nothing to say about the prospects of there being any more money to pay the depositors. That is in the hands of my attorneys, and I have no idea what may have been done in my absence."

Mr. Siegel went to the Hotel Majestic. He will confer with his attorneys today.

District Attorney Whitman got the books of the Boston store for use in the trial which, if change of venue is not granted by Justice Blanchard will be moved about June 15.

Henry Melville, receiver for the bank, has distributed to 7,000 depositors more than $400,000. There remains $1,000,000, of which about 8,000 depositors have left $10,000, many of whom may never be heard from.

John P. Murray, of Coudert Brothers, said yesterday many depositors he represents have not applied for their money, although notified at addresses given when they retained him.

BURGLAR SLAIN BY HIS 'PAL' IN BRISBANE HOME

POINT PLEASAN, N. J., May 28.—Stretched at full length upon the floor of a blood spattered bedroom in the unoccupied Riverside home of Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, the body of a murdered man was found. The victim has not been identified, but a man who had been seen in his company, and who sought to escape across the river in a rowboat, is locked up pending his removal to the county prison at Toms River. Prosecutor Harry E. Newman, after seven hours of terrific grilling, announced that he was confident the prisoner committed the crime.

In the pocket of a vest found in the room with the body was a note book in which the name of John R. Hafer was written upon a page inserted for identification. Beneath it was the address "1749 Rose street, Reading, Pa.," and following were written the names "Mrs. Rose Hafer, Raymond, Henry, Edna and Elida Hafer." It is believed that Hafer is the man who was murdered.

HEARD ANGRY VOICES.

The Brisbane cottage stands along a dense grove of cedars, near the river shore. Michael Whelan, while passing through the grounds heard men quarreling on the second floor. He thought at first they were workmen, and later spoke to Edward Erickson, a chum, and the latter's mother of the affair. He went to the cottage and called but received no answer. The two young men then hid among the trees and watched the entrance. About ten minutes later the man who is now a prisoner, emerged cautiously and started off in the direction of the river. Whelan followed and engaged him in conversation.

This man, who is about six foot two inches in height, was rubbing something from the blade of a knife as Whelan drew near and tying to induce two little boys to row him across the river to Monmouth County. Whelan heard him tell the boys he wanted to get away because "they were after him."

FINDS THE BODY.

Erricksen meantime entered the house and found the body of the murdered man. He hastened to town and informed Chief of Police John Harker, who returned and arrested the man whom Whelan had managed to detain. The prisoner refused to give his name or tell anything about himself.

The head of the murdered man had been crushed in and his body was marked all over with cuts. Blood lay in pools over the floor of the room and the wall and the bed were smeared with blood.

The larger man evidently had attacked his companion while the latter was asleep or too intoxicated to defend himself. Seven empty champagne and port wine bottles lay about the room. Three of them had been broken in the struggle.

CARDINALS GREETED BY POPE

ROME, May 28.—Magnificent ceremonies set against a background of such impressiveness as only the Roman Catholic Church can produce, attended the public consistory at the Vatican today when all the newly created cardinals who are in Rome were received by Pope Pius X.

The ceremonials were held in the gorgeous Hall of the Beatification, the galleries of which were thronged with spectators, many of whom came from overseas.

At 8 o'clock the great bronze doors of the Vatican were thrown open to the international crowd which assembled in Rome for the secret and public consistories of the week.

Slowly and in large groups monks and nuns representing almost every religious order of the Catholic church filed into the Vatican between double rows of Swiss guards and made their way into Beatification Hall.

At 9 o'clock the members of the sacred college took up their places around the papal throne at one end of the hall. In boxes especially set aside for their use were members of the Roman Catholic nobility, the papal diplomatic corps, the relatives of Pope Pius X. and distinguished visitors. The whole formed a picturesque group that waited for the Pontiff to enter.

OMINOUS REPORTS SPREAD.

Ominous reports had been circulated that, on account of the weakened condition of his health, the Pope might not be able to withstand the ordeal. While the vast audience remained in silence Monsignor Rigzi, prefect of ceremonies, entered. The cardinals, Vatican prelates and officers of the church took up their various positions while the choir in the Sistine chapel struck up "Ecce sacerdos magnus." As the first strains of the anthem rang through the crowded chamber the papal mace bearers made their appearance followed by a detachment of noble guards, giving proclamation that the Pope was about to appear.

All eyes were turned toward the entrance, and as the papal chair, borne by four stalwart members of the guard, appeared upon the threshold, the crowd threw itself upon its knees.

The paleness of the Pope's face was accentuated by the ermine robes which covered his shoulders and the gold mitre which crowned his head. His eyes were deep sunk, showing the effects of weakness and fatigue.

The Pontiff raised his right hand in blessing upon the multitude, and his face brightened perceptibly as he beheld his relatives.

CARDINALS KNEEL.

At the foot of the papal throne the cardinals bent in homage. With extreme caution the Pontiff ascended the throne, while the cardinals knelt in an act of submission.

Mgr. Riggi gave a signal and the cardinals arose and formed in a procession, two abreast. Then they moved slowly with bowed heads and muttered prayers toward the Sistine Chapel, where the newly created cardinals had been in prayer or in silent meditation since early morning.

The return procession offered another imposing scene in which the suites of the American prelates, Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal Farley and Cardinal O'Connell took part.

Preceded by a detachment of Noble Guards, headed by Cardinal Falconio, the new chamberlain, and by gentlemen in waiting, the newly created cardinals slowly entered the hall, proceeding directly to the papal throne. There in order of seniority they knelt and kissed the Pope's knee, receiving in turn a double embrace from the Pontiff.

GREETS ALL IN PROCESSION.

The ceremony over, the Pope exchanged greetings with all in the procession, after which he went to his private apartments.

Among the prominent Americans occupying reserved seats were Ralph Bartlett of Boston, Mrs. Hugh J. Grant and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Waldo of New York.

Cardinal Farley of New York and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston took formal leave of the Pope yesterday. Cardinal O'Connell will leave Rome tomorrow and Cardinal Farley will leave next Tuesday. Both are going to Switzerland for a rest.

In the final audience of Pope Pius X. and Cardinal O'Connell, the Pontiff sent his heartiest thanks to the Catholics of Boston for the money they had contributed for the restoration of St. Clements.

Medford Man Held for Mother's Death

John H. Collins, twenty-five, was arrested and held today by the Medford police after an inquiry into the death of his mother, Mrs. Ellen Collins, at their home, No. 10 Linden street, Medford. The discovery of a bruise beneath Mrs. Collins' right eye led Medical Examiner Durrell to notify the police, who say Collins admits striking his mother last night when she attempted to leave the house after an altercation.

Italy Will Not Pay Charlton Witnesses

NAPLES, May 28.—Giovanni Porzio and Emilio Catapano, counsel for Porter Charlton, have received from Charlton's father a sworn declaration that his son is indigent. This is not sufficient, according to the Italian law, to have his case undertaken gratuitously by the State. Carlton must, therefore, either be satisfied with the intercession of a Caruso or as taken in the United States or pay the expenses of the witnesses if they are brought to Como.

INGERSOLL'S NIECE REFUSES TO GIVE UP CHAUFFEUR HUSBAMD

Mrs. Arthur H. Liberty, the former Naomi Clare Noland, niece of Robert H. Ingersoll, who is honeymooning with her chauffeur-husband in St. Johnsbury, Vt.

The romance of "Jack" Geraghty, the Newport chauffeur, and of Julia French Geraghty, who are now in Woburn "living happily ever after," as the story books says, finds its parallel in many ways up in St. Johnsbury, Vt., where Arthur H. Liberty, chauffeur, has today brought his adoring bride, who was—with the accent on the "was"—the favorite niece of the chauffeur's employer, Robert H. Ingersoll of New York, the dollar watch millionaire.

"Jack" and Julia Geraghty were married in a little Connecticut town after an automobile elopement, with distinguished relatives in futile pursuit.

Arthur H. Liberty and his employer's niece, Miss Naomi Clare Noland, were secretly married on May 15 in New York. She returned to her music studies, he to his duties at the Ingersoll country home, until the marriage became known.

Julia French Geraghty chose "Jack" Geraghty instead of wealth and the exclusive society position of the Amos Tuck French family.

Miss Noland was offered everything that money can buy if she would only return to the Ingersolls and simply try to forget Liberty for a few months. She was studying music under Walter Damrosch. She gave that up. She spurned a trip to Europe.

"I know my husband loves me," says the bride. "I would rather have him than all the money in the world. We loved each other at first sight, and I know we will be very happy."

The Vermont express, which left New York city at 7 o'clock last night, bore the bridal pair today into St. Johnsbury, where Liberty was eager to present his bride to his own people, then to set about entering the automobile business with money he has saved in the metropolis.

That Mrs. Liberty was a prosperous heiress of the Ingersoll wealth until she married Liberty is shown by statement of Mr. Ingersoll that he and Mrs. Ingersoll will now adopt not one but a whole household of children—boys and girls. We shall take in not less than eight or ten."

'SYLVIA RUNS AWAY' OPENS AT THE WILBUR

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

There is work for the editor's blue pencil and the finishing touches of a re-write man in "Sylvia Runs Away," which braved the high temperature at the Wilbur last evening. Otherwise Robert Housum's comedy (which should be called a farce) will serve very well as hot weather entertainment. At any rate, the play brought several engaging players together for a night of revelry that included melodrama, romance, farce and burlesque. It was a case of mistaken identity that kept the play going, with now and then a dig at Pittsburgh's smoky way. The author, being a Cleveland newspaper man, doubtless felt justified in nagging Pittsburgh.

However, there was plenty of rollicking fun in "Sylvia Runs Away," with amusing complications and several delightful characters. The women of the play included Alice Brady and Geraldine O'Brien—and concluded with them. Both these young players added a delicious charm to the entertainment and had much the best of it artistically when compared to the men in the piece. Miss O'Brien, as the runaway Sylvia, proved a bewitching ingenue, and Miss Brady made the most of her opportunities and did not once lose her balance.

Not so much may be said of the men, although Ned A. Sparks, who wandered through the evening with a perpetual grouch, and Elmer Booth, who contributed one small but bully scene, kept on the safe side of their art.

Mr. Booth, as Tango Frank, the best dancing gunman in New York, was all that saved the last act from failing to pieces. Albert Brown not made a distinct hit with Boston audiences when he appeared here in "Little Miss Brown," earlier in the season, found the going rather hard at times, but managed to keep on his feet. Many of Mr. Brown's troubles may be attributed to the author.

"Sylvia Runs Away" had the germ of a splendid farce. Its humor was rich and wholesome, but much of it was over-played and over-written. The sentimental scenes were especially distressing. The skilful touch of a sound and intelligent play doctor will make "Sylvia" a dramatic joy. All it needs is treatment by a specialist.

In any case you will enjoy the exuberant good nature of the play and the queer little romantic bits that touch it now and then.

NAY ASSAILS DRESSER FOR BANK WRECK

Attorney Frank N. Nay, counsel for former Governor John L. Bates, who as receiver is trying to hold the directors of the National City Bank of Cambridge responsible for its losses through George W. Coleman, the $15-a-week bookkeeper, exonerated Edwin Dresser, millionaire president of the bank, in his argument before a master in the case.

Said Attorney Nay:

To the avarice, miserly passion for economy and colossal negligence of Mr. Dresser must be blamed the wrecking of the bank.

He had no letter press. It would cost money.

He had no audit, because an audit would cost money.

He had no cage about the teller's seat. Yet when a teller's cash was short he "put the screws on" cruelly.

He hired a boy at $4 a week as a bookkeeper.

He was deaf to warnings against Coleman.

He regarded Coleman as the "coming man" of the bank.

Then Mr. Nay went on to make twenty-four specific charges against Mr. Dresser. Some of these charges were:

1—Lack of caution in employing Frank Earle as cashier.

5—Putting Coleman, a boy of nineteen, in charge of the deposit ledger.

7—Failure to have any supervision of the deposit ledger.

7—Ignoring repeated shortages in the accounts of tellers.

10—Failure to investigate Coleman's life and habits after warnings.

11—Failure to investigate Coleman's purchase of an automobile.

12—Ignoring two warnings that there was a thief in the bank.

13—Ignoring a warning Coleman was friendly with a woman.

Thaw Quits Concord for Mountain Hotel

CONCORD, N. H., May 28.—With ten big trunks and a half-dozen grips, Harry K. Thaw shook the dust of this city today for his Summer home at Gorham. He caught the train by a hop skip and jump stride, being delayed with the writing of letters at the Eagle Hotel. He was accompanied by Sheriff Drew, Policeman Stevens and his private secretary, H. J. Rice.

Sarah M. Coats Left Public Bequests

The will of Sarah M. Coates of Melrose, filed today at East Cambridge, gives $1,000 each to the Woman's Home Missionary Association of Massachusetts and Rhode Island to the Massachusetts S. P. C. A.; her library to the Willard T settlementof Boston, and real estate to be divided between the Melrose Hospital Association and the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church.

TAKE SLAYER SUSPECT, FEAR HE'S WRONG MAN

NEWBURYPORT, May 28.—Policeman Eli Mills of Attleboro, after seeing a man held here on suspicion of being Finton Thompson, who is wanted on a charge of murder, declared he was doubtful if the suspect was Thompson. However, he took the suspect with him to Attleboro on the 2 p. m. train.

Thompson is accused by the police of slaying Mrs. Marie Desmond Colbert and attempting to kill Miss Mary Powers and Joseph D. Powers at Attleboro.

"The suspect is heavier than the real Thompson was when I saw him four years ago," said Mills. "The suspect asserts he is Vernon Thompson Heath of Washington.

"When we get to Attleboro I shall have some people who know Thompson look this man over."

MAY SHED COATS FOR SOCKLESS SOLON

Sawyer's Example of Sandal Footwear Causes Legislators to Ponder.

Action of Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, coming to the State House yesterday without any stockings on—save to goodness if he didn't—threatens to precipitate a Legislative crisis

• • •

Indicates, for one thing, that Summer is at hand, and that honorable lawmakers will shortly be putting on bathing suits and going away from there.

• • •

Or, speaking more carefully, going away from there, and then putting on bathing suits.

• • •

Representative Sawyer—who also is the Rev. Mr. Sawyer—was wearing sandals today; sandals with innumerable windows in them. Just like "Cramp" used to make out of his old boots, when the "rheumatics" bothered him.

• • •

"At home," Mr Sawyer says, "I always go barefoot in the warm weather. Being his costume for this sort of spell is straw hat, cotton shirt and overalls. Didn't feel like going that far, with the Legislature in session, and so have compromised on pongee and sandals."

• • •

Having landed his trilbys on all the front pages, Mr. Sawyer has naturally aroused a little jealousy here and there.

• • •

Report early today that Representative "Pat" Curley of Cambridge was headed for Beacon Hill wearing an umbrella. This report may be only "paper talk," but, if Curley makes good, Essex Abbott of Haverhill will be on deck tomorrow in swimming trunks. John L. Donovan, the Mayor of Boston's Chinatown, threatens to show up in a lifelike imitation of "September Morn, Good Night."

• • •

Now for the dirty work.

• • •

Jeremiah J. Desmond, outside man for the Good Government Association, informs the AMERICAN that on the final reading of the Larger City Council bill an amendment will be offered providing for what the Good Government folks call a "genuine" referendum.

• • •

The amendment involves a "Plan 1" and a "Plan 2," reading as follows:

• • •

At the State election, on November third, nineteen hundred and fourteen, the then registered male voters of the city of Boston shall be entitled to vote upon the following plans for the election of a City Council, which shall be printed upon the official ballot in the following form. The voter shall make a cross in the space at the right of the plan which he desires to have adopted. No ballots shall be counted upon which the voter has made a cross in both spaces.

• • •

Plan No. 1.—The present system under which a City Council of nine members is elected at large.

• • •

Plan No. 2.—A new system, under which a City Council of seventeen members is to be elected from twelve districts as provided by the acts of the year nineteen hundred and fourteen.

• • •

If a majority of the votes are cast in favor of the first plan, the present system of electing members of the City Council shall be maintained. If a majority of the votes are cast in favor of the second plan, a City Council of seventeen members shall be elected by districts as provided in this act.

• • •

Asked why the proposed amendment has not made its appearance earlier—before everybody was on record, and by a vote of 123 to 103 the House had ordered the Robinson bill to a third reading Mr. Desmond said:

• • •

"The amendment was offered, in due season, to Mr. Robinson himself, as the author of the bill and the petitioner for legislation. This is the amendment Mr. Robinson referred to on the floor, as having been offered to him outside of the chamber by friends of the charter."

• • •

So that Mr. Lomasney will not have won his battle for representation in the City Council by districts until the House has finally passed the bill "to be enacted."

• • •

"Feature" item on the House bill today is the question of holding a Constitutional Convention. House is already on record in favor of such a Convention, but the Committee on Ways and Means has reported against it on the ground of expense.

• • •

Just as well for Progressives and Democrats to have in mind, today, the fact that both the Progressives and the Democrats went before the people of Massachusetts last Fall on platforms which, among other things, promised a Constitutional Convention.

• • •

Now, it has become fashionable at Washington to ignore party platforms but, as Charles S Mellen says, the United States is one thing and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts another thing yet again.

• • •

Official report, from the Labor Division of the Bureau of Statistics at the State House, shows that at the end of March no less than 12.9 per cent of the members of local trades unions in Massachusetts were unemployed. This, with one exception," says the report, "is higher than any corresponding percentage since December 31, 1908."

• • •

Might just as well have called it the largest unemployed percentage in six years, for the "exception" referred to included 9,000 textile workers at Lowell, involved in a strike pending on March 30, 1912

• • •

The principal cause of unemployment at the close of the present quarter was lack of work or material, the percentage unemployed for this cause having been 9.2, as compared with 7.4 for December 31 1913, and with the same percentage (7.2) for March 31, 1913. The proportion of organized wage-earners who were unemployed because of lack of work at the end of March, 1914, was greater than any period since March 31, 1908.

• • •

The percentage unemployed on account of lockouts or lockouts was 0.6 at the close of the quarter, as compared with 0.5 for the close of the previous quarter and with 1.6 for the close of March in 1913. Of the organized employes in several occupations, comparatively large numbers were reported as unemployed owing to strikes in the following municipalities. Shoe workers in Beverly; painters, milk wagon drivers, willow, reed, and rattan workers, and cloak and skirt makers in Boston; shoe workers and carpenters in Chelsea, painters in Framingham, sailmakers in Gloucester, molders in Pittsfield; and metal polishers in Springfield.

• • •

In several cities the percentages unemployed (all causes) were notably high. In Gloucester the high percentage (21.5) was due principally to the unemployment of fish workers, sailmakers (on strike), and granite cutters.

• • •

The high percentage (20.0) in New Bedford was due principally to the unemployment of a large number of city employes (for lack of appropriation), also of textile workers (mule spinners and loomfixers), shoe workers, and flint glass workers. In Holyoke large numbers of carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers and paper makers were reported as unemployed.

• • •

In the other cities specified the unemployment was principally in the building trades, except in Haverhill, Salem and Brockton, where large numbers of shoe workers were reported as "working on short time." New Bedford, Haverhill, Holyoke, Cambridge, Salem, Springfield, Pittsfield and Worcester showed notably higher percentages unemployed at the close of the last quarter than at the close of March, 1913. Decided improvement in Lawrence and Lynn is indicated by the returns.

• • •

BUILDING TRADES. Returns for the close of March, 1914 show very high percentages unemployed in certain occupations in the building trades, as follows: Painters, decorators and paperhangers (44.6); bricklayers, masons and plasterers (40.2), lathers (wood), wire and metal (39.3); hod carriers and building laborers (37.1); carpenters (23.8); engineers (hoisting and portable) (22.8); and sheet metal workers (19.5).

BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTURING In this industry, although there was considerable unemployment at the close of March, 1914, the percentage unemployed (14.4) was slightly lower than the corresponding percentage (14.9) for March 31, 1913. It was, however, over 10 points higher than the corresponding percentage (4.0) for December 31, 1913. In Haverhill, Salem and Brockton the unemployment was principally in the nature of short-time work on the part of considerable numbers of operatives.

• • •

TEXTILE INDUSTRY. There appeared to be no considerable amount of unemployment among the organized wage-earners in the textile industry in any of the several textile centres. The number reported as unemployed constituted but slightly over five per cent. of the total number reporting, as compared with 14.7 per cent. unemployed at the close of March, 1913.

• • •

MISCELLANEOUS OCCUPATIONS. Notably high percentages of unemployment were reported in the following occupations: Quarry workers (24.2); municipal employees (23.9); and garment workers (22.7).

Three Things Necessary in Treating Skin Diseases

Cuticura, the well-known remedy for Eczema, pimples and other skin troubles, does three things. It stops the itching, it forms a fluid covering over the sore places on the skin, thus excluding air and germs, and it sets up the healing process. In this manner you can see and feel a distinct improvement in less than twenty-four hours. Cuticura is such a good remedy that a list of each ingredient is contained in printed upon each box. People who buy a remedy are entitled to know what it is made of, so they can talk to their doctor about it if they desire. Secret remedies are going out of fashion, and Cuticura was among the first to show just what it is made of. Get a 10c box of your druggist and try it. The 25c size contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size.

$20 and $25 Men's Suits at $12.75

We bought the traveling men's samples and show room models of one of the most prominent and best clothing manufacturers in America with the idea of having the most sensational sale held in the city of Boston so far this season. When we were about ready to announce this sale, the manufacturers, who are very good friends of ours, rang us up on the long distance telephone and begged us not to publish their name in the newspapers.

However, their label is on every coat, a name that is almost as familiar to you as your own—a name that stands for the best quality—the smartest styles—the finest workmanship and the highest character in the clothing world.

If we could publish that name, there'd be a stampede here that would resemble a riot. But you can just take our word for it that there are thousands of men who could never afford to wear these clothes before who will be mighty glad to have the opportunity this sale presents.

Just one word more—there are styles enough in every possible size so that every fastidious fashion follower will find his taste exemplified in several beautiful models. Just come, and don't lose any time, either—you'll be well enough rewarded.

WASHINGTON, [illegible] cious historians [illegible] sorrowful days [illegible] in the administration [illegible] quite a chasm [illegible] chasms.

The split forms [illegible] in the New Haven [illegible] Governor Folk [illegible] merce Commission [illegible] New Haven [illegible] White House [illegible] Department [illegible] him [illegible] began [illegible] fancy [illegible] clare [illegible] of a [illegible]

Mr W[illegible] Justice [illegible] side Mr Folk [illegible] the Interstate Commerce [illegible] is on [illegible] verse [illegible] His [illegible] that [illegible] White House may wipe him [illegible] map [illegible] It will [illegible] him [illegible] stop him [illegible] there'll be a scandal [illegible] politicians are grinning like so many Cheshire cats.

Mr Wilson has not only [illegible] badly but he has been badly [illegible] To make bad worse for the administration the Senate shows [illegible] of going behind Mr Folk. With Senate to back him and the [illegible] state Commerce Commission [illegible] loyally at his side, Mr Folk—experienced in the rough and [illegible] form of combat—is quite capable of making any White House regret the error of its ways.

FOLK DISTURBS WHITE HOUSE.

If Mr Wilson was looking for a quiet life he made the mistake of his career when he gave Mr Folk to the I. C. C. as its solicitor. The ex-Governor of Missouri is the merest thunderbolt in breeches and Mr Wilson might have foreseen an explosion. It was Mr. Bryan who handed Mr. Folk to Mr Wilson and he couldn't have proceeded more cleverly had he designed Mr. Wilson's destruction.

Upon best authority it may be stated that an understanding was arrived at in Baltimore between Big Money and the Wilson management. Big Money demanded five promises. The Big Money program for the settlement of the New Haven tangle, the Union Pacific tangle and the telephone tangle must be accepted and worked through by the Wilson administration. Also the canal free tolls clause must be repealed and the asked-for [illegible] per cent freight rate advance be granted to the railroads. While Big Money made them, the five demands, one and all, were railroad demands. Mr. Wilson, through his management, conceded them, and since his inauguration has done all that one President could to live up to his promises.

Until the introduction of the honest and explosive Mr Folk into the dingy equation the administration was succeeding [illegible] well in carrying out its Baltimore compacts with Big Money. Then even as a bolt from the blue came grief. The Senate ordered the I. C. C. to light an investigatory candle and look into the New Haven.

Over $[illegible] had been stolen and the Senate told the I. C. C. to discover the facts. The I. C. C. did light its candle not ardently, not without hesitation and reluctance, and the search began. Mr. Folk, as solicitor for the I. C. C., was given the candle and to [illegible] lead the way. He was the only one for the I. C. C. who went into the business with aught of original enthusiasm. Now, however, that the I. C. C. has been rapped over the snout by Mr Wilson and Mr McReynolds and per consequence gotten its back up, it has become [illegible] honestly headlong as Mr Folk.

The more [illegible] the Senate promised to [illegible] sustain it if it were [illegible] threatened it with the Senate's [illegible] in case it wavered or [illegible] crooked. Caught thus between the White House and the Senate [illegible] somewhat aflame from having been insultingly ordered about by Mr McReynolds, the Interstate Commerce Comission has resolved to uphold Mr Folk.

N. H. PROBE TO BE DEEP.

Today the Interstate Commerce Commission—Mr Folk leading and the Senate closing up the rear, is determined at whatever cost to itself, its Big Business and the Wilson administration [illegible] to the [illegible] bottom of even New Haven [illegible]

The investigation has been adjourned one week [illegible] for stock market [illegible] pretending that the inquiry will [illegible] resumed. This is not so much an [illegible] Those falsely [illegible] know better. [illegible] interference was [illegible] the pretense which no[illegible] that to examine Mr [illegible] Mr Rockefeller and their [illegible] directors would give them immunity from certain criminal prosecutions which he (Mr McReynolds) was going to institute. The week's [illegible] is intended to give Mr McReynolds a chance to begin.

Should he fail to move the investigation will go forward. Mr Morgan, Mr Rockefeller, Mr Ledyard, Mr Plant, Mr Baker, Mr Miller, Mr [illegible], Mr Skinner, Mr McHarg, Mr Millikan, Mr Cochran and Mr Barney [illegible] time or another of the New Haven directors will be called to the witness chair. If there be aught of New Haven sort hidden away within their dark interiors it will be made to face the light of day. The incisive Mr Folk with his questions will split them wide open like a mackerel.

INVALIDS NOT TO BE SPARED.

Nor will the invalids be spared. Mr. Folk's position has ever been that the man who is strong enough to steal is strong enough to tell about it. Mr Rockefeller must come to Washington. Mr [illegible] must come to Washington. The latter's case is unusual. His doctor and his lawyer both insisted that it would kill him to testify. In the same breath they [illegible] that he was upon the track of woodcock. Mr Folk, himself [illegible] insists that Mr. Plant take the stand.

Mr Ledyard professed himself eager to confute the Mellen disclosures. Mr Ledyard, sly, predatory, keen of eyes [illegible] following track of a dollar, was jackal in chief to the Morgans. He scouted, he skirmished, he knew all that lion Morgan knew. [illegible] knowledge, and Mr. Ledyard, [illegible] Mr Folk is through with [illegible] feel as though he'd been [illegible] through a knot-hole.

Mr [illegible] the second will also be [illegible] Just now Mr. Folk is in New York going through the Morgan books. Mr Folk, not Mr Morgan, will pick out what books are examined. Mr Folk in particular will want to see the books of original entry, notably the minute books of executive boards, financial boards and boards of directors. Mankind will know more about the New Haven when Mr Folk is through than it does now. It will know more about Mr Wilson and Mr McReynolds in their relations with Big Business.

Divers people and papers condemn Mr McReynolds for his efforts to shield the millionaire robbers of the New Haven. In that connection those same people and papers exonerate Mr Wilson. They weep over him as one betrayed by his own Attorney-General, and sing the honesty of his motives as the moment they demand that the evil Mr McReynolds be tossed overboard in a sack.

CABINET ACTS FOR CHIEF.

This making fish of one, while making fowl of the other, should fool no one. It may be accepted that no Cabinet officer ever speaks or moves in any matter of importance without the consent and full agreement of his President. His words are White House words; his deeds are White House deeds, his demands are White House demands. When Mr McReynolds objects to the examination of a Rockefeller or a Morgan or a Mellen the objection is a Wilson objection.

He would be a fool who doubts it. Every Cabinet is but a fife and drum corps for what administration calls it together. When any member tooties or drum-thumps out of time and White House tune, he resigns. Until Mr. McRe holds steps down and out of his cabinet place his words and acts may be safely accepted as White House words and acts.

There is a question beyond the New Haven question which is beginning to bother the Administration. Also it wrings the withers of Big Business until the sweat stands out in beads on the B. B. brow. The taste for railroad inquiry would appear to grow with what it feeds upon. The investigation that it threatens to spread. Senator Norris is preparing a resolution to haul the New York Central over the I. C. C. coals, even as the New Haven is being hauled over the I. C. C. coals. Also the resolution will be offered and adopted.

The road cost less than $75,000 a mile. It has been "watered" to nigh $500,000 a mile. It is a rebate criminal of long and persistent standing. It bought the Michigan Central in the face of law, the M. C. being a competing line. It was ninety per cent of the Lake Shore stock, and pays its own dividends of five painful per cent only with the thirty per cent. dividend it draws from the Lake Shore. Likewise civil war prevails between the New York Central and the minority shareholders of the Lake Shore.

REALLY WORTH WHILE.

To investigate the New York Central should be highly worth while to everybody, unless it be a Morgan or a Vanderbilt. This thing will go bounding on like a barrel down hill until the one solution left open will be the public ownership of railroads.

P. S.—The administration's bill to eliminate free tolls and change an American canal into a Wilson-Carnegie-pro-English canal goes dragging its slow tail in the Senate. The end seems a week away. The most excitable Wilsonite claims a coming victory by no more than three Senate votes. Representatives who followed the Wilson flag for a pro-English canal in the House and who must go home for re-election this Fall are gnashing their teeth.

Four weeks ago they said that they must stand solidly behind Mr Wilson for an English canal or whatever else he might want, however un-American, in order to be re-elected. Those special Congressional elections in Massachusetts and New Jersey shook them. The Oregon primaries completed their confusion. They are beginning to distrust the very name of "Wilson."

From saying, "We must get behind the administration," they have shifted to "Every man for himself," and are getting as far from the administration as they can. These frightened and enlightened ones have been hearing from home. The news would indicate that—thanks to Mr. Wilson—the Democrats in the next Congress will be given the old familiar tail hold.

BOSTON FRIENDS HEAR MRS. VERNON CASTLE IS OUT OF DANGER TODAY

Mrs. Vernon Castle, the dancing teacher of New York and Boston, from her latest photograph.

Boston friends of Mrs. Vernon Castle who have studied the modern dances under her tuition and that of her husband, were greatly pleased today to hear from the New York hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis, that she is rallying well and is now out of danger.

The announcement of the attending physician that dancing could in no way be blamed for Mrs. Castle being stricken was hailed as a point in favor of the new dances.

Counsel Folk who had the former under examination in his room at the Waldorf for more than an hour. Skinner will probably take the witness stand at the resumption of the New Haven investigation at Washington.

Three other New Haven directors, H. K. McHarg, A. Heaton Robertson and George F. Baker were also put through a preliminary examination behind closed doors by Mr. Folk yesterday. The understanding is that the first two corroborated Mellen.

Deny Vaterland Was in Collision

W. G. Sickel and J. O. Meyer, vice directors of the Hamburg-American line, today gave out a statement denying that there was any collision when the big Vaterland sank a coal barge in leaving her pier at New York for the return trip to Hamburg. They say:

"Regarding the damage reported done to steamers and barges at the Southern Pacific pier, this damage was entirely due to the wash from the Vaterland's bow. No official statement can be made as to why the Vaterland came so close to the New York shore till an investigation has been made upon the arrival in Hamburg of the Vaterland.

"Outside of the sunken coal barge the damage caused by the Vaterland will be covered by a few thousand dollars. The statement that the vessel left her pier at huge speed is not correct. The usual precautions were taken."

'BEST LEARNING FOR GIRL IS HOW TO MAKE DRESS'

Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham pastor of the Arlington Street Church told the young women graduates of Tuckerman School today in Channing Hall that the best education for them is to know how to make their own dresses.

Dr Frothingham took the place of President-emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, who was called away to New York.

The speaker said that there was an element of progress today in all education and that progress meant expansion.

Sometimes we find fault with the high schools of Boston because they are not turning out modern Shakespeares, or Dantes or Virgils," he continued, "but we are turning out in our schools those who can give meaning and practical application to the truths which these great writers set forth.

Education means for the modern girl how to make her own dresses. It is an education for life.

"We are not to expect great results, but little things well done and persisted in. The millenium can't arrive by parcel post."

Dr Samuel A. Eliot presented the diplomas to the following graduates: Edith Elvira Bean of Whitman, Martha Cunningham Stimson of Fitchburg, Mrs Susan Marvin Barker of Ayer and Anna Brooks Cater of Leominster.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It If Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet)
2 ounces Water

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which would injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for once what real eye comfort is.

Brady and McDonald Out of Big Games

Columbia entrants in the intercollegiate championships at the Stadium tomorrow have dwindled to three, owing to inability of Captain-Elect Brady to compete in the hurdles and Frank MacDonald in the same event. Serious illness in his family will prevent Brady's toeing the mark, while his teammate is out with a pulled tendon.

Coach Bernie Wefers will have Captain Beatty, holder of the intercollegiate shot-put record, to heave the 16-pound ball; and Duke Olmstead and S. Graham. Beatty surpassed his record in practice yesterday when he put the shot 49 feet 4 inches, the first time he has reached his form of two years ago since Beatty injured his right shoulder last Spring.

Honus Wagner Near 3,000 Mark in Hits

Honus Wagner is crowding close on the mark of 3,000 base hits as a big leaguer. Including last Monday's game the incomparable Dutchman had a grand harvest of 2,987 hits made since he entered the National League arena in Louisville in 1897. He had 2,951 hits at the close of last season, and unofficial records gave him thirty-six, including last Monday. Since then he has made three hits, making a total of 2,990, and needs only ten more to have 3,000. Also he has 704 stolen bases and 1,569 runs.

RED SOX WILL RETAIN EXTRA MEN ON TEAM

"Regh, Engle, Janvrin and Henriksen will remain with the Red Sox," said Secretary Riley of the Boston club today. It was reported in New York this morning that Manager Chance was sweet on an extra outfielder and an infielder now with the Red Sox.

"Manager Carrigan intends to retain his present squad and be protected against accidents," continued Secretary Riley "The deal by which Guy Cooper, the pitcher, comes here from the Yankees was a straight purchase and had nothing to do with the sale of Nunamaker to the New York club."

Secretary Riley wired President Farrell to have Cooper report immediately Cooper is expected here tomorrow. Cooper was purchased by the Yankees from Petersburg of the Virginia League, where he won the pennant single handed last season He was formerly a star athlete in the United States navy, having held the middleweight championship of the Atlantic squadron for a couple of seasons.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

NOW THAT THEY'VE GOT THERE, HOW long will they stay there? Meaning, of course, the Washington Senators, who ousted the Tigers from the top perch in the American League. Griffith has just rounded out a [illegible] pitching staff to help out Walter Johnson, and if these youngsters can retain present form the Senators are going to stay at or near the top for a long time.

THE MEN WHO HAVE BEEN DOING SO well as helpmates to Walter Johnson are young Ayres, Jim Shaw and Joe Boehling.

CONSIDERING WHAT HE HAS HAD TO contend with, Charley Herzog, formerly third baseman of the Braves and Giants, is doing very well with the Cincinnati team. The Reds are right in the heels of the Pirates and Giants and are the only team that are giving the leaders any kind of a fight.

MANAGER JACK DUNN OF THE BALTIMORE Internationals has signed every player on his team to two year contracts, with the five-day clause eliminated.

KONETCHY AND JACK MILLER, THE two first basemen [illegible] St. Louis [illegible] last [illegible] were batting exactly the same, [illegible] when the latest figures were compiled.

THE WASHINGTON BATTERIES WORK in pairs. [illegible] Johnson [illegible] owing to Ainsmith's injury.

GEORGE BURNS OF THE TIGERS IS [illegible] the left field bleachers for a home run.

COVALESKIE, THE DETROIT PITCHER is showing no such form as his early games promised. He started off like a champion, but the other teams are getting to his delivery regularly now.

RED AMES IS DOING SOME FINE pitching for the Reds, and he is likely to finish the season with one record, that of pitching three winning games in one week. It is many a year since the ex-Giant was called upon to do so much pitching in a single week.

NEYLAND OF THE WEST POINT TEAM continues to mow down opponents in a way that stamps him as one of the best college pitchers of the year

NEYLAND HAS PITCHED A NO-HIT game and has held opposing teams down to few hits in other contests. His latest performance was against Catholic University, when he blanked the [illegible] boys and fanned twelve.

OUIMET MAY CAPTURE FRENCH GOLFING TITLE IN TOURNAMENT TODAY

BROWN DEFEATS MOHA IN BOUT AT THE ARENA

By JACK CONWAY.

GEORGE "KNOCKOUT" BROWN, the Greek middleweight extraordinary, is today rated a few points higher in the pugilistic line-up as a result of his victory over Jack Moha in a ten-round bout with both of them members of the Atlas A. A. last night. The Greek is now middleweight champion of the Atlas A. A. throughout the winter, and by a big margin in each of the three decisions ceased.

Moha's downfall was freely predicted by bookmakers and fistic followers who thought so well of him that they bet against Brown that they had a 10 to 7 lasso on the betting, as it seems to be fashionable for the wise enders to breeze in towards these days.

"Porky" Flynn and Charlie White were among the latest to upset the "dope" by picking Moha to win. Flynn, our esteemed Boston Brave, who have not been favorites since the day of the last world series, is one of the wise boys to lose big bunches of good United States currency.

Moha refuses to admit that Brown is his master and has put up a fight this morning to the effect that he is anxious to secure a return engagement with the Greek gladiator. It is believed that he would be better another tussle.

IT was not necessary for the Atlas Club management to put up any "standing room only" signs, as the oppressive heat put a damper on the enthusiasm of the fight "fans." Most of them evidently had all they could do to keep the honorable Weather Man from sending them reeling through the ropes. Consequently it was only a select few who witnessed last night's whirl.

Brown set a fast pace in the opening round and maintained it until the bout ended. He had an advantage of four inches in height, while he hit a greater reach than Moha. He used his left hand continuously and beat Moha to the punch time and again. Moha, however, kept following Brown around the ring, but was only able to score when he got close to his opponent.

THE majority of the "fans" did not believe that Brown would be able to hold Moha off during the eight rounds of the encounter. They figured that "Fighting Jack" would land a dream punch or else slow Brown up with a few solid body blows. But they were mistaken. Brown continued to box cleverly and refused to fight at close quarters, which would have given Moha an advantage. The result was that he piled up a comfortable margin in his favor.

FRANK RYAN, the Kentucky heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Bob LaFavor of Brockton in the semi-final bout of eight rounds at George Parry of the West End was originally scheduled to exchange blows with Ryan, but he was unable to box on account of illness and La-Favor took his place on a short notice.

JOE JEANETTE, the dusky Hoboken heavyweight, and our fellow townsman, "Porky" Flynn, are scheduled to clash in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas Club next week. Flynn has a newspaper decision over Jeanette to his credit and he believes that he will outpoint him again next week.

* * *

In the preliminaries Jack Ryan was a shade too fast for Bob Lefavor in an eight-round session.

Johnny Noonan of Dorchester and Johnny Murphy of South Boston, rivals at one time in the amateur ranks, fought six hard rounds to a draw, and Patsy Greco and Gus Lanny went along at a fast clip for six rounds to an even break.

Eagan Ready for Bout with Jasper

Joe Eagan, the clever South End welterweight, is to box his twelve-round bout with Young Jasper, which will take place in the University A. C. tomorrow night. If Jasper wins, he will try and coax Eddie Murphy of South Boston into a match, and if Murphy refuses to box him he will take on the best welterweight in New England that can be secured to meet him.

Jack Reed, who was carded to box Terry Brooks, will be unable to box, and "Tiger" Young of New York city will take his place. Young is a rugged performer. He has won over Ray Wood and has fought Hugo Kelly and boxed George Gilger in slashing bouts. Larry Burns of Lawrence and Charley Cowles, Boston of Cambridge, are right for a preliminary. The A. A. has waived the assessments for the summer months.

Harvard Freshmen Four Beats Exeter

The Harvard freshmen four-oared crew was the winner over Exeter after a close race on the three-quarter-mile course in the Basin, the victory going to the college crew by a foot or less in a driving finish.

The race was decided in the last half-dozen strokes, when the freshmen had a little reserve of power.

The crews

Harvard—[illegible]; stroke, A. Coombs; 3, Chapin; 2, Hall; bow, Hoagland.

Exeter—Patterson; stroke, Quigley; 3, Christmas; 2, Bonsal; bow, Ames.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

UNCLE BILL CARRIGAN has another winning pitcher. His name is Joe Wood. Ever hear of him?

"Smoky Joe" looked awfully good against the Naps in spite of the fact that they hammered the ball hard in spots. But, as a matter of fact, the Naps are a hard hitting club and from the showing they have made at Fenway Park it is a source of wonder how they managed to strike the tail-end berth.

* * *

FROM the way Joe started off there was a feeling that he wouldn't last through the game. But he did. Not only was his control poor in the first inning—which perhaps is to be expected as it was really his first game of the year—but in the second round the Naps faced the pill for a double and two singles.

Joe did not use much speed in the first two rounds and his curve ball could not be depended upon, but after the second he began to get himself out and before long the "smoke" was there in volumes.

From the third to the eighth the Naps could do nothing with him, they going out in order in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh. In the seventh Joe struck out two men, the last of the inning being a curve ball thrown with all the speed that Amos Rusie used to put behind his famous curve ball.

* * *

IN the eighth Joe must have let up a little, or he might not have been able to put so much "stuff" on the ball. At any rate, the Naps started to hit him again and they scored two runs in the last two rounds. But Joe never lost his nerve and thanks to some clouting by his teammates the Red Sox won out 5 to 4.

* * *

Hooper—Fly to Turner, fly to Graney, base on balls, base on balls.

Lewis—Grounder to Bisland, single to right, sacrifice fly to Leibold, grounder to Turner.

Speaker—Single to left, two-bagger to left, grounder to Johnston, single to centre.

Janvrin—Fly to Graney, single to left, fly to Bisland, single (bunt).

Cady—Single to left, single to centre, foul to Turner, grounder to Bisland.

Wood—Fly to Jackson, grounder to Turner, foul to Turner, grounder to Bisland.

* * *

THE Red Sox got over eleven hits. If they keep up this kind of hitting and the pitchers continue to work well, there is no limit to what Carrigan and his men may do.

* * *

THEY have painted out that sign in centre field for Larry Gardner's special benefit. The sign bothered him when a right-handed pitcher was in the box. Now the space is painted black.

* * *

PRESIDENT LANNIN of the Red Sox is following in the footsteps of Henry Ford, the automobile man. Mr. Lannin doesn't go as far as Mr. Ford, but the idea is along the same lines. In a word, Mr. Lannin has raised the pay of the small army of men who cut the grass, play the hose, roll the sod, pick up paper, shovel up peanut shells and in other ways keep Fenway Park looking attractive.

The new owner of the Red Sox examined the payroll the last pay day and remarked to his office staff:

It was done.

* * *

TERRY TURNER'S refusal to play shortstop for the Naps during Chapman's layoff is undoubtedly a handicap to Lajoie's team, although one will not think so, judging by the Boston series. Nevertheless, the Naps' infield would be stronger if the cottontop would play short.

When Chapman was injured Officials of the club asked Turner to play short and fill in until Chapman returned to the game. Turner can play the short field as well as Chapman or any other player. When he was the club's regular shortstop he was recognized as one of the best in the country. His arm gave him trouble, however, and he was shifted to third.

Turner said last Spring that his arm was in perfect shape. He whizzed the ball across the diamond in old-time form and when Chapman hurt himself Turner was asked to take his place.

Turner begged to be excused, saying he feared his arm might go lame.

Churchmen Get Bets Proof at N. Y. Races

NEW YORK, May 28.—Intermingled with the crowd of about 6,000 who visited Belmont Park race track were several investigators employed by the Episcopal diocesan committee now in convention at Garden City. They made extensive notes of what they observed in the spacious basement of the grand stands.

It was said that if they observed any violations of the law their evidence would be presented to the District Attorney of Nassau County, who will be requested to bring it before the attention of the Grand Jury.

Canon William S. Chase, who has been vigorously fighting gambling at the race tracks, would not discuss the investigation his associate ministers are making, but he said this:

"If men known throughout the world as bookmakers are accepting bets at Belmont Park racetrack then bookmaking is going on there. That is certain. It does not matter whether money is passed openly between the races or not.

PENN FAVORED BY LIPPINCOTT TO WIN MEET

By DONALD F. LIPPINCOTT.

Penn's Intercollegiate 220-Yard Champion, Member of 1912 Olympic Team and Holder of World's Record for 100 Metres.

The college world is looking forward with great interest to the big event of the year, and practically the wind-up of athletics for the larger universities — namely, the intercollegiate track and field championships, to be held in the Harvard Stadium, at Cambridge, tomorrow and Saturday.

This meeting is always well attended and great interest is manifested in the outcome. But the final result this year means more than usual, and for that reason there should be record-breaking crowds, as Pennsylvania and Cornell each have four legs on the $1,000 trophy, a large silver cup, and either institution needs only one more victory to retain the prize permanently.

I have considered all possibilities in this meet and have come to the conclusion that Penn should win with 38 points, Cornell should be second with 32 points, Yale third with 21 points and Harvard fourth with 24 points.

In figuring I did not consider Allen, the California broad jumper, who, I understand, will be on for this meet, if he should come it would take Cornell's score down one point and tie them with Yale. In making these summaries I have not counted myself as competing in any event, for I do not know yet whether I will be able to run at all, and if I do compete I do not know in what event or events it will be.

Should I be able to compete at all, and should my leg stand up under the strain of trials and final heats, it would indeed be marvelous, for such a quick recovery from a pulled tendon is unprecedented and I would certainly consider myself lucky if I should be able to finish any race without my leg giving way.

In analyzing the 100-yard I have picked as the winner "Jim" Patterson of Pennsylvania, the present intercollegiate champion, and joint record holder. Although "Jim" has not shown his usual form throughout this year, I believe he will come into his running by Saturday and show his heels to the field.

Polo Candidates in Big Match Today

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 28.—Polo among the candidates for the international team was called off on account of heavy showers a few minutes before the time set for the game at Meadowbrook.

The cup defenders line up today with Lawrence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., captain; Rene La Montagne and Devereux Milburn.

The opposing four will probably comprise T. Rouse [illegible], Kenyon C. Bull, Stoveford Stevens and Henry C. Phipps.

Slippery turf made fast riding dangerous. The English ponies were given light exercise, and this will be kept up daily until the arrival of the English players.

OUIMET HAS BIG LEAD IN FIRST HALF OF FINAL

PARIS, May 28.—Francis Ouimet, open golf champion of the United States, was 4 up on Henry J. Topping of Greenwich, Ct., at the end of the first half of their match for the golf championship of France today on the Lalboulle links at Versailles. The second eighteen holes of the final round will be played this afternoon, and with the big lead Ouimet acquired this morning he is the top-heavy favorite.

The final contest between the two American stars drew a large number of Americans out to the course today. The gallery that followed the players over the course was the largest that ever assembled on a golf course in France.

New Rudder Post for the Resolute

BRISTOL, R. I., May 28.—A new rudder post is ready for the cup candidate Resolute. The rudder post first in use was found defective in some essentials and a new one was cast from gun metal bronze.

The Resolute was towed here from Newport and taken out upon the Herreshoff marine railway. It is intended to give the underbody plates a slicking up before the sloop sails the latter part of the week for Glen Cove to contest in the New York Yacht Club series against Defiance and Vanitie.

NAPS IN FINAL GAME AGAINST CARRIGAN CREW

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

This is the last day the Naps play here this trip. They will line up against the Red Sox at Fenway Park at 3:45 o'clock. This is half an hour in advance of the regular time. The early start is fixed so that the Cleveland team may catch a train to take it home.

It is the last day in the East as well for Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis teams. Delahanty arrived in the East a couple of weeks ago well in the lead of the American League race. That lead has disappeared and now the Tigers are in second place. It is only in New York that the Western clubs have had the better of the argument.

The game at Fenway Park today should show Dutch Leonard in the box for Boston and Gregg pitching for Cleveland. If these two twirlers do the heavy work it will be a battle of southpaws. Time was when Gregg puzzled the Red Sox. But he hasn't been so effective lately and with Leonard going like a house afire the prospects for another Red Sox victory look promising. Provided our boys can hit the ball.

On Friday the Washington team, with the great Walter Johnson, arrives on the scene. They will be here on the holiday and if the weather is kind there will be tremendous crowds out to see the new leader of the American League pennant race.

Uncle Bill Carrigan gave his batting order another little twist yesterday, placing Scott second in the list. If Gainer keeps on hitting the way he has hit in the two days he has won a Boston interest, Uncle Bill will have to keep him up there higher in the line. Yesterday he came very near hitting the ball over the left field fence. The ball went half way up the tall sign near the scoreboard.

King's Horse Wins Great Surrey Race

EPSOM, Eng., May 28.—Many Americans, who won large sums on the victory of Durbar II in the Derby, returned here today to bet on one or more of the three $5,000 classics that were on the program. King George came out from London, but because of bad weather conditions Queen Mary did not appear. It was estimated today that Americans won fully $700,000 as a result of H. R. Duryea's horse capturing the Derby. Mr. Duryea won the largest individual winner, but scores of others had down sums ranging from $10 to $2,000. The Great Surrey Foal stakes, five furlongs, for two-year-olds, was won by King George's Friar Marcus. Bright was second and Cherry Hinton was third.

CARDS GLAD TO SEE STALLINGS' BRAVES DEPART

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 28.—With a record of two out of three, the Braves are the ranking team of all the Eastern National Leaguers in the games played by the Cardinals to date.

Stallings' band was picked as the easiest of all the big visiting teams, but they have made the best record of all the eastern clubs which called.

The Hallies were beaten three out of four; the same happened to Brooklyn, and the Giants were stopped two out of four, but the great Stalling by the Cardinals didn't do much fooling to Stallings' hustling tribe.

For instance, in the third and final game of the series, Ballee, premier southpaw, was handed his worst trimming of the season. He operated for three innings and during that time was found for seven runs and seven hits.

The big blow was a home run by Maranville in the second inning with three on and two out.

The Braves appeared to be weak in the outfield. Stallings could use more experienced players in the meadows, but the youngsters he owns now look to be fast and clever fielders.

They may be a bit shy in hitting, though when the season advances and the real pitchers get into stride. However, in the batting department and in the infield, he stands as good as the Cardinals.

There's no doubt but Johnny Evers tightens up the infield. Jawn is a wonder. In every game here he continued to coach the pitchers coached the infielders, he mentioned the outfielders where to move for the opposition batters and otherwise directed the defence of the Braves.

This is not always seen by the average fan, but it gets the victories for the Braves. Working alongside of "Rabbit" Maranville, the Braves easily have the best keystone combination in the National League.

Boston Man Tightens Grip on Tennis Title

NEW ORLEANS, May 28.—Irving Wright of Boston has practically clinched the Southern tennis championship by defeating A. C. Walters of New Orleans in the fourth round by 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

The game was a hard-fought contest in three sets, Walters giving Wright trouble with his serving.

Women Golfers in Semi-Final Title Match Play Today

Miss Fanny C. Osgood, Miss Margaret Curtis, Miss Harriot Curtis of the Country Club and Miss K. F. Duncan of the Brae-Burn meet in the semi-finals in the women's Boston championship meeting at the Woodland G. C. today.

Miss Osgood won her match quite handily in the second round from Mrs. F. G. Davis; Miss Margaret Curtis scored a victory over Miss Anne Nason of the Country Club by 2 to 1; Miss Harriot Curtis won over Mrs. E. W. Daley of Oakley, the brilliant Southern champion, by 5 and 4, and Miss Duncan put out of the running Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Oakley by 1 up.

The biggest surprise of the day was the defeat of Mrs. Jackson, as her game in the first round was so good that it was thought that she would be at least in the semi-finals.

Miss H. S. Curtis played a fine game in her match with Mrs. Daley, while her sister Margaret paid back Miss Nason for her defeat at the Country Club last Fall by winning on the seventeenth green. Mrs. T. F. Tully won the handicap vs. bogy competition, finishing all even.

Smith Is Favorite in Motor Cycle Race

Saugus Motordrome has its inaugural meeting Saturday afternoon with an hour race as the main feature. H. F. Smith, who holds the New England mile record over a dirt track of a minute flat, is favorite for the big race but there is much expectancy over what Eddie Haines of Lynn will do.

Jack Yates has a new machine called the "Typhoon" specially for the hour race and "Ohio" Crandall, the rider who hails from Cleveland, has also a special machine. Thomas Croce of East Boston, the Italian champion, is another rider expected to figure prominently.

FRENCH RACERS LEAD LIST IN AUTO CONTEST

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28.—After three days of the fastest automobile racing ever seen on the Indianapolis motor speedway, the 30 drivers who will start in the annual 500-mile race here next Saturday have been selected.

Georges Boillot, the French driver, who set a new United States record on the 2½-mile track, circling it in 1m. 30.13s, led the list of successful drivers. Boillot drove his car around the course at a fraction less than 100 miles an hour.

Jules Goux, his teammate, was second, going around in 1m. 31.71s. Teddy Tetzlaff was third. Ralph DePalma, known as the hard luck driver, qualified on his third and last trial lap. He was twentieth and required 1m. 42.12s to go the 2½ miles.

Boillot is the winner of three Grand Prix races in France. Goux won the race here last year and this team is favored in the betting.

The successful drivers, the order in which they finished, and their time performances are:

Boillot	1.31.14.6	Chassagne	1.41.90

KILLS BIRD WITH BALL

A. N. Reggie, a well-known tennis player, in an accuracy test of his stroke at the Longwood Courts, took aim at a bird on the greensward twenty-five feet away, and his well directed ball killed the sparrow in a flash.

Gardner Bonis, with whom Reggie played, subscribed to the fact that nothing he had ever seen in the game went truer to its mark.

Double Race Bill for Holiday at Beach Bike Oval

A double bill of racing has been arranged at the Revere cycle track for the holiday and features cards will be run off both afternoon and evening.

George Wiley, the middle distance champion of America, will be seen at both matinee and evening races.

In the afternoon he will meet Leon Didier, the French champion, in a match heat motor-paced race and in the evening he will go against Jimmy Moran, who makes his first appearance of the season Saturday. Elmer Colling and Eddie Root, in a one-hour motor-paced race.

The Didier-Wiley race will be decided in the 10-mile heats, best two in three.

Another feature of both afternoon and evening program will be a three-cornered sprint match race between Frank Cavanagh, the Irish champion Freddy Hill of Watertown and Bob Spears, the Australian whirlwind.

Duryea Won Over Half Million on Race

The winning of the big Derby by Duryea's Durbar II., a rank outsider, was a bitter pill for the English sporting public. Not only did Duryea's entry capture the English racing classic but in turning the trick brought $650,000 to his owner. It was expected that the King's horse would win the event, and the American entry was raised at odds of 7 to 1. Duryea and a few of his friends played their cards well and backed Durbar II. heavily, as a result of which they gathered in a handsome sum from the bookmakers who believed that they were playing a sure thing on the King's horse.

The Woman Who Waits

If You Are in the Throes of a Long Engagement Read This Girl's Letter and the Answer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I became engaged six years ago and have been wearing my ring all that time. Of late my friend does not speak on the subject at all, and if anyone speaks to him about it his answer is: "I'll get married when I am ready." I love him and he tells me he loves me very much, but he goes out with other girls. What am I to do? ROCHESTER.

THE answer is simple: Do anything rather than sit meekly by while a selfish man absorbs your youth and affection and gives you in return—a diamond engagement ring and a heartache!

This man who involves a woman in a long engagement has only one justifiable excuse—inability to support her properly.

And even that hardly justifies his position. When a man asks a woman to marry him he should be ready to assume the burdens and responsibilities of matrimony within a reasonable time.

And six years is an outrageous length of time for any woman to sit and wait for a man to get "ready" to marry her. No woman should weakly permit herself to be placed in such a position. The engagement ring on her finger is a sign that warns other men away from her. It marks her love as the possession of one man—and she should not mean that the possession is a cherished one.

WHAT TO DO

The girl who is being so high handedly treated should tyrannize a bit in turn. She should stop wearing the ring and offer to return it to the giver, telling him that he will not marry her when he is ready, for she has been ready these many years, and is still ready to carry out her agreement at once, but tomorrow or the next day she will have passed the time of readiness for setting the date of her long-postponed wedding.

"Now or never!" should be her slogan. If it is "now" all the weary waiting must be forgotten. But if the man still shows a desire to "eat his cake and have it, too"—to be betrothed to her and yet to enjoy the sweets of freedom—self respect demands that it be "never!"

The woman who waits for a man who is not ready to settle down throws into the scale youth and charm and opportunity and her first beautiful illusions. And unless on the other side are loyalty and real love to overbalance selfishness and fickleness she receives no fair return for her waiting.

AN EXCEPTIONAL CASE

There are exceptional cases in which waiting is the only thing to do. I know of a case where a young mining engineer was sent on a mission so dangerous that he positively refused to allow his fiancee to become his wife and go along to suffer two years of hardship. I know of another in which the man gave his fiancee the choice of coming to live in the home he must maintain for his mother and invalid sister or waiting until he could afford to have a home of his own without depriving those dependent on him of their needs. In both cases the girls chose to wait, and were rewarded with loyalty and happiness.

But the man who chooses in idle selfishness to prolong his bachelor days does a woman a grave injustice when he asks her to undergo the strain of a long engagement. If a man feels in his heart "This is the woman to whom I will cleave—forsaking all others," he will not wantonly postpone the time of making his sweetheart his wife.

It is acceptable manners to reserve a house or an apartment by taking the "refusal" of it and then looking around for something better.

It is contemptible for a lover to secure a girl's loyalty through an engagement compact and then to take years to assure himself that he has found just what he wants. A younger face may suit him after his sweetheart has sacrificed her youth to catering to his whims. And neither her wasted years nor her lavishly expended love brings any return but sorrow to the girl who waited for marriage to crown a long engagement.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GEE, I guess this is as hot a day as we are going to have all Summer," said the Manicure Lady, getting in line with one of the electric fans. "I didn't think we was due for this kind of a day so early in the season, but as them old Romans used to say, 'Sic Semper Nux Vomica,' which means something like 'you never can tell.' It's hard to breathe, even.

"I suppose the song writers will be getting busy now with a new crop of Summer songs, all about the beaches and the sea waves and the Summer moon. Wilfred says he is going to put over two or three Summer hits, but as he ain't started to write any of them yet, we ain't taking him very serious. He has wrote a little poem, though, about the warm weather. He wrote it yesterday when he came home with prickly heat all over his forehead. It goes like this:

"The Summer heat is coming now,
To make the city people sigh.
There is a rash upon my brow,
Which proves that the dog days are quite nigh.

He certainly what you eat and drink

In these hot days of torrid Summer,
Or else it will put you on the blink,
As it once put me on the bummer,
I hovered long 'twixt life and death,
And once the doctor feared dissolution.
But stronger each day I drew my breath,
Thanks to a very strong constitution.

"I thought you always said your brother wasn't strong," said the Head Barber.

"He ain't," said the Manicure Lady. "That's some more of his poetry license. He wasn't very sick, either. He just happened to get tangled up one day last Summer with some of father's old friends, who thought he could trot like the old gent, but he hadn't trained along with them very long before they found out that he wasn't no chip of the old block. They sent him home in a cab in the middle of the afternoon, and he stayed in bed all the next day. He told mother that it was a kind of a sunstroke, and I guess the poor kid kind of thought it was, but he was resting except over drinking and goodness knows any drinking at all is over drinking for him."

"It ain't much of a poem he wrote," said the Head Barber.

"I didn't look for no praise from you when I read it to you," replied the Manicure Lady. "As I have often told you, George, I don't read my brother's poems to you for any criticism, because you ain't no more critic than a hoo-toad. I just read them to get them off of my mind, because somehow when I over read one of them out loud I never think of it again. You ought to try that some time, George."

"I don't need to try it with anything he ever wrote," said the Head Barber. "I wouldn't remember it anyhow. I do not care for what he's wrote, so it ain't fair his stuff to choke. How is that for poetry?"

"The limit," replied the Manicure Lady. "I guess the hot weather has went to your head."

Love of Mother

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

WHEN Daughter paints a marine view it is so realistic to Mother that when she looks at it she feels the salt spray dashing in her face.

Mother has other worries than the baking and the price of butter. She is worried lest some of the young men who call on Son won't fall in love with Daughter, and that some of the girls who call on Daughter may fall in love with Son.

Between the children who are cross half the time because they are hungry, and half the time because they either have to go to bed too much, Mother has a hard time of it.

When Father refuses to let the children draw pictures with a pin on the piano legs, Mother sighs and says: "Men have so little patience with children they don't deserve to be fathers."

This conversation is heard often: Mother says, "Mary, get a pitcher of water." Mary says, "Make Tom do it." "Oh, well," says Mother, "I will do it myself."

In every place of business there is an employe who is called the "trouble man," because it is his duty to soothe away every grievance, but in the biggest place of business in the world, The Home, where children are made into useful young men and women, the "trouble man" is a woman. "He" is Mother.

A very tired woman realised that she was about to die. The spring sewing had not been touched; there was the house to clean, the children's clothes were in need of repair, and so many other duties demanded her attention that she felt it would be nothing less than shiftlessness to die and leave it all undone. But the doctor told her she was going; there was no hope for it, and asked if she had a last word to say. "Tell them," she said, thinking of the spring housecleaning, the sewing, the cooking and the mending, "to put on the 'Combatens these words: 'Mother Has Gone on Her First Vacation.'"

Up-to-Date Jokes

An old man who looked like a foreigner was walking along a London street playing a concertina that had seen better days. Noticing a brass plate with the words, "Doctor of Music" written under the name on it, he went up to the house and rang the bell. The door was answered by a servant, who asked his business.

"Please," he said, "is the doctor o' music in?"

"Yes; what is it you want?" the servant asked.

"Why, just pop in an' ax him how much he'll charge to mend my concertina," was the reply.

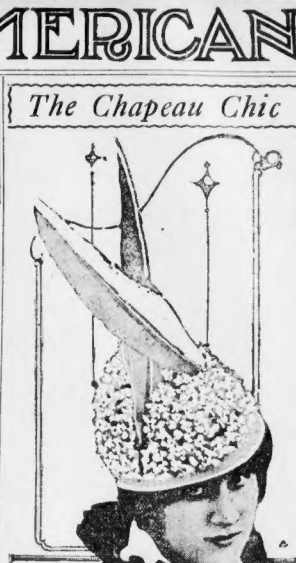
The Chapeau Chic — Fully Described — By OLIVETTE



The all-white hat

A brimless model

THE all-white hat is always cool and chic looking for mid-Summer wear. Here is an advance model that is well within the compass of the ability of the home milliner who likes to have the latest idea from Paris in her chapeaux.

The greatest points in hatdom today are a well-dressed head of hair and the proper tilting of the little "bonnet." All hats are worn salient over the right ear with just the proper admixture of coquetry and daring.

The smartest thing in small chapeaux is shown here on the left. It is a bowl shaped, brimless affair and comes from a well-known shop in the Rue Royale.

The entire crown—or hat itself—is covered in a mass of white narcissus. White satin pipes the edge of the hat and forms two huge quills which emerge from either side of the flowers at the sides of the front and cross in tepee fashion just above the top of the flower crown.

The brimless model shown on the right illustrates the greatest novelty in millinery creation at the moment.

It is of brick red linere trimmed daringly with coq. The greatest "modiste" in Paris stands sponsor for this startling combination of red-and-brick and American beauty.

Dulcie makes friends with the Prussian general

CHAPTER FOUR

For the Sake of France.

IT was an easy matter for Marianne to tap the wires and in a very short time she had them ready and had stepped back into the room. Then she carried from the closet the extra telegraph board that had been sent them and set it up on the table.

Attaching the wires she slipped the sound transmitter over her head and a smile of satisfaction spread over her face; she could hear everything perfectly. Now would come the time when she would be able to pay back Prussia for the death of her husband.

Dulcie's voice on the stairs brought her to a realization of the danger that she must constantly fight against. Dulcie had become very friendly with the Prussian general and his attaches, much to Marianne's displeasure, but Dulcie was a very winning little girl and old General Ramage had fallen a victim to her charms. To tell the truth things would not have been free and easy for Dulcie and her mother if it not been for this very fact, for prisoners of war are seldom allowed any liberty to speak of, and for this reason Marianne should have been duly grateful.

A DARING PLAN

It took but a second to slip off the wires and carry the bulky arrangement back to the closet. For the present, anyway, she had heard enough, but she must be off to the French camp to deliver her news before Dulcie had a chance to miss her and inquire downstairs for her mother. It would take very little in a time like this to create suspicion in the most unsuspicious of mortals, and it would never do to have her liberty curtailed in any way just as she had decided on this splendid undertaking.

There was a ladder just outside of the window, and Marianne was soon on the grass just below her window. She glanced fearfully around before making any further move and then as there was no one in sight she crept noiselessly through the shrubbery, jumped a fence and dropped softly down on the other side. She was quite near the active boundary now, for the border line was just ahead, and men were scouting in the underbrush close beside her. But crawling along on her stomach she managed to reach the open wood safely and was soon flying on her way to the French camp, her precious slip of paper clasped safely in her hand.

In the house she had just left Dulcie had climbed upon the old general's knee and was chatting with him as if they had been old friends always. She held a doll much the worse for wear in her arms, and at an earnest request from the general was telling him that it was the only doll she had ever owned.

"And now it is broken," he said with much concern, looking at the headless remains of what had evidently been a very fine young lady.

"Yes, but you can fix it for me it you will," said Dulcie eagerly. "you see I have the head. and I thought you were almost smart enough to do anything."

The two men laughed, and General Ramage pretended to puff with pride. "Let me see this sick child," he said with a professional manner, much to Dulcie's delight. "Ah, I think we can fix this little matter; pass that ointment." he said to one of the men, indicating the glue pot, and then with much ceremony the head was fastened on. While Dulcie looked on absorbed in the operation.

A PRETTY SCENE

"Just like the time when we had the doctor for mother," she said, when it was all over, and then she giggled as the doctor looked at her over his big glasses as he had donned for the occasion. "And you look like him, too, but thank you ever so much for making my child well, Mr. Doctor." And then they all laughed; it was good to hear a child laugh in the midst of so much trouble, thought the old man, as he carefully removed his glasses and wiped his eyes. And then the door burst open and Marianne stood upon the threshold. She took in the scene at a glance, Dulcie on the general's knee, the other men standing around plainly amused at the scene, and with a little proprietary gesture, she beckoned the child to her and together they left the room.

Tomorrow—France Victorious.

The Only Hope

There could be no dispute in the matter. The jockey was just over weight—only the merest fraction, but enough to disqualify him.

The disappointed owner glanced from the little rider to the scales, then to the little rider again.

"Williams," he said, "can't you do something to lighten yourself a bit?"

"No, sir; ain't 'ad a bite of any sort these two days."

"Hum! Shaved?"

"Yes, sir; five minutes ago."

"Finger nails?"

The jockey held out his hands. The nails were clipped almost to the quick.

For a moment the owner was silent. Then a bright idea occurred to him.

"Run away and have your tonsils out," he shouted. "Hurry, lad, hurry!"

Dorothy Dix Tells the Value of

Keeping the Peace

How Enormous the Rewards to a Wife if She Would Only Refrain f rom Nagging

By DOROTHY DIX

THE finest art in the world is the art of keeping the peace. On our ability to get along harmoniously with other people depends not only our success to a large degree, but our happiness in life, yet the majority of people never think it worth while to study even the rudiments of the science of keeping off of other people's toes.

The average individual goes through life like a bull through a china shop, smashing into other people's cherished beliefs, knocking over their pet opinions, trampling under foot their prejudices and hobbies. This raises up for him enemies at every turn, who stand in his pathway and block his progress, for no reason at all except that they don't like him, and they don't like him because he doesn't understand the gentle art of keeping the peace.

Of course there are times when all of us have got to oppose other people and fight them. There are times when it is unalimous and cowardly not to stand up and put up the best scrap that is in you. But 99 per cent. of our fighting is utterly useless, and if we would put one-tenth of the strength that we do in combatting other people's idiosyncrasies to walking around them without bumping into them we would get better results.

For it is a rock-ribbed truth that people will do things for us because they like us that they would not do for us because it is our right, to save our lives. Our fellow creatures may owe us certain obligations, but we've got no way of collecting them unless they choose to pay. That is what makes the ability to make friends one of the greatest assets any one can possibly possess.

The art of keeping the peace will carry you further than any other one thing in the world. Without it industry falls of its reward and genius dies stillborn. No matter how capable a man or woman may be, if they cannot get along with other people nobody wants them.

HAD TO GO

"Jones is a splendid fellow, a glutton for work, and he knows all about the business," a merchant will say, "but I had to let him go because he's so cross, and surely he was driving my best customers away." "Smith is the best workman I ever had, but he kept the shop in a ferment with his temper, and I had to dismiss him," a factory owner will say. "Miss Brown was an expert stenographer, but she could't get along with anybody in the office so we had to fire her." is the explanation of why many a girl loses a good job. "Of course, Miss So and So is the very woman for the part," says the theatrical manager, "but she's never been in a company she didn't break up. I wouldn't try to get along with her for a million a year."

These are remarks that we hear every day. Moreover, we see how they work out in real life. We see the inefficient and inferior ability, but understanding the blessed art of keeping the peace, going ahead of the disgruntled genius, and we know ourselves that there is no quality in the world that we consider more valuable in an employe or a fellow worker than just being agreeble to get along with.

And if the art of keeping the peace is valuable in professional life, in domestic life its price is above rubies. It is the one and only panacea for the divorce evil, for the thing that drives husbands and wives apart is not some great sin, but just a million little disagreeable tricks and speeches that might just as well have been avoided as not, if they had understood the art of keeping the peace.

THE TROUBLE

The trouble with most of us is that we think that amiability and a pleasing personality are solely the gifts of nature, and we fail to realize that they are traits that may be cultivated. Undoubtedly some people are more pacific than inclined than others, but we can all learn to keep the peace if we will.

Why should the ticket agent snarl out replies at you when you ask a perfectly civil question in a railroad office? Why should the shop girl bite your head off, metaphorically speaking, if you don't buy the first article she shows you? Why should the subway conductor throw an insulting tone into his voice when he orders you to step lively there? Other ticket agents and shop girls and conductors speak to you civilly and graciously, and, incidentally, they are the ones that always move up higher, because their practice the art of keeping the peace.

We know a lonely woman who is always bewailing her friendlessness and feeling hurt because she is not invited to places to which she would like to go. She doesn't understand why she is left out, and yet she is never in any company in which she is not like a firebrand. She invariably seeks as her topic of conversation something that will mortify or offend one or more of the other guests. Yet to be popular this woman would only have to avoid saying the cutting and sarcastic things she does.

How easy it would be for a wife to keep the peace by avoiding the topics that she knows affect her husband's temper as waving a red flag does a bull! What a little sacrifice it would be to her to avoid doing the things that irritate him! How enormous the rewards if she would only refrain from nagging him about his little personal peculiarities! How simple for the husband to jolly his wife along instead of knocking her!

How beautiful the rewards for merely being pleasant, and yet to the great majority of people the art of keeping the peace is as much a lost art as making Damascus steel.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or nervous spells, all pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, and I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

All our testimonials are guaranteed genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks averaged higher this afternoon than they had around the beginning, but the advance was not due to liberal buying. Prices crept upwards when trading was contracted and tame. This is thought to indicate what an upturn there would be if the market was helped by any genuine impulse. There was a dearth of news of any kind which usually actuates prices movements.

By afternoon in New York gains included Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ¾, Reading ⅛, American Can ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅛. General Motors had previously sold down to 94¾, but had recovered to 97, and was then off a point. During the interim it showed for a brief period a fractional gain. Canadian Pacific was up ⅛. New Haven was down ⅝ and Baltimore & Ohio ⅛. Steel had receded ¼ and Amalgamated and American Smelting were unchanged. There was about as little business in copper shares as a class as there was in copper metal. Buying of the latter is again at the negligible stage.

In Boston interest was centred upon Boston & Maine, which was then off 2⅛ at 33¼. Its low had been 32½. New Haven was unchanged at 67¾, having recovered a fractional loss. Among gains were United Fruit ¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅛, Granby ¼, Osceola 1 and Centennial ¾.

One statement about the strength of Southern Pacific is there are indications that the $88,000,000 of its stock sold by Union Pacific last year have all been absorbed. Its report for April was not a bull factor, however. For that month its gross earnings decreased $98,321 and its net $291,257.

STOCKS OPENED STEADY.

Steadiness prevailed when markets opened, prices remaining around the level at the close yesterday. What news there was regarding the Mexican situation was rather reassuring. Politics continued to disturb. It is reported from Washington that President Wilson will yield to organized labor's objection to the Clayton trust measures, as it applies to that interest. It is also said that there will be an insurgent movement on the part of some Democrats in the House to pass farm credits legislation at this session in spit of White House disapproval. Most traders are of the opinion that there can be no material change in market conditions until there is some evidence of an alteration in sentiment at Washington. The undertone is firmer than it has been for a long time, and there is apparently widespread belief that if anything favorable happens there will be a bull movement of consequence. While general trade is still stagnant there are signs of an improvement. Merchants will need more goods this Fall than for many months.

Close buying on their part has kept them with very small supplies. The demand which looks inevitable should start up many industrial plants, and the great crops promised means that Europeans as buyers will have to return a large proportion of the mone ythat has ben taken away from this countr yof late. The situation has not changed much as yet, except that confidence that a better era will soon arrive is growing stronger.

PRICES EASED OFF EARLY.

Trading was dull in New York throughout the morning and over the noon period, first hour transactions totalling less than $9,000 shares. Soon after the opening prices eased off fractionally. But fluctuations were narrow and changes did not indicate either selling pressure or demand. Business, in fact, was perfunctory. In the last half of the morning irregularity prevailed as it had during the first half. Some issues advanced in New York. Missouri Pacific grew stronger and there was a good gain for Southern Pacific. Steel was a little weaker.

Before New York opened Americans had developed a downward tendency in London. But that had little influence upon this side. The decline in Canadian Pacific was attributed to depression in Berlin occasioned by reports that Emperor William is ill. The Bank of England weekly statement was disappointing and about the only thing reassuring about that of the Bank of France was that it had gained 30,360,000 francs in gold for the week.

There was very little about the New York market today to inspire interest. It did not receive much attention from the public. There is more watching than trading on the part of casual speculators. Many students of values are of the opinion that if investors wait much longer they will miss most of the bargain opportunities existing now.

BOSTON & MAINE SLUMPS.

There was little about the local market worthy of comment except the slump of Boston & Maine in the second hour. That issue opened ⅛ higher on the purchase of four shares and on the next sale declined ⅝. It was weak, althrough the first hour, and later declined to 32½, a low record price. Douts were rife as to its being able to obtain the money it needs. There are fears of an assessment, or something even worse. Considering how much Boston & Maine stock is held by New Haven, the latter was very steady.

Business was on a small scale here, but the most important local issues in which there was any movement showed gains.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is quoted as stating that Canadian Pacific has 2,600,000 shares of stock outstanding owned by 34,589 shareholders whose average holdings are 75.17 shares.

Prince Poniatowski, the French financier, declared upon arrival in New York that American securities are beginning to command confidence again in France.

Full time work has been resumed in Southern Pacific shops, and Chairman Julius Kruttschnitt says sentiment is better on the Pacific coast than in the East or Middle West.

The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount remained unchanged today at 3 per cent. It reports its proportion of reserve to liabilities as 42.50 per cent., compared with 52.64 in the corresponding week last year.

The London copper warrants market was quiet today, and by noon spot was unchanged and futures off 1s. 3d.

The combined net earnings available for dividends of subsidiary companies of the Massachusetts Gas Cos. for April were $230,902, a decrease of $6,281, or 2.65 per cent., as compared with corresponding month a year ago.

The New England Gas & Coke Co. has declared an annual dividend of 1½ per cent., the same as a year ago. In 1912 3½ was paid.

TO HOLDERS OF NOTES OF THE

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

The holders of a very large majority of the $27,000,000 notes due June 2, 1914, have already agreed to one or the other of the alternative propositions for extension contained in the Company's circular of May 15, 1914, and the Company's offer has been so universally approved that IT HAS BEEN DETERMINED TO EXTEND UNTIL THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1914, THE TIME WITHIN WHICH NOTEHOLDERS MAY DEPOSIT WITH THE OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY, 17 COURT STREET, BOSTON, their assents either to extend their notes for nine months with interest discounted at 6 per cent. per annum, or to extend 60 per cent. thereof on the terms just mentioned, and receive in exchange for the remaining 40 per cent., at 100 and accrued interest, Five-Year 5 per cent. Notes of the Maine Railways Company, due April 1, 1919.

Attention is called to the statements in the Company's circular of May 15, 1914, that it is necessary that substantially all Boson & Maine Notes now outstanding, amounting to $27,000,000, must be extended or exchanged for new notes.

Only the assent of the Noteholders will save the Company from a Receivership. By order of the Finance Committee of the Board of Directors

Morgan's Answer to Mellen Is Almost a Confession of the Truth of Mellen's Statement

J. P. Morgan's answer to the testimony of Charles S. Mellen is almost a confession of the truth of Mr. Mellen's statement. When a man is under the necessity of answering charges and then attempts to answer and fails, HIS FAILURE IS A CONFESSION.

Much of Mr. Morgan's reply as was truthful was uninteresting and unimportant. He takes the responsibility of requesting Mr. Mellen's retirement. He would imply that he considered himself to have rendered a great public service by that action.

But as a matter of fact, he was not attempting to render a public service at all, but, on the contrary, to deceive the public. It is plain to any intelligent citizen that Mr. Mellen speaks the truth when he says that he was made the "goat"; that the real culprits, Mr. Morgan and his confederates, who controlled a subservient crowd of directors, were trying to divert attention from their thievery by crying "Stop thief!" at a man who was merely obeying their orders.

The removal of Mr. Mellen and the substitution of a new man, UNDER THE SAME ORDERS AND CONTROL, made the situation very much worse, because it obliged the intelligent part of the public to convince the unintelligent and the gullible that it was the same old wolf in sheep's clothing. It was Mr. Morgan's duty to have asked Mr. Rockefeller and his coadjutors to resign, and to resign himself. HE did not withdraw until he had been forced out by the scorn of public opinion.

Mr. Morgan defends his father's scheme of a transportation monopoly in New England upon the ground that it was necessary for New England to concentrate her power in order to deal with the competition by those parts of the country nearer the sources of supply and the centre of population. There may be some force in that argument in anybody's mouth but Morgan's. With Mr. Morgan it is an audacious pretence, for at the very time he was creating his monopoly he was leaving the New England system virtually in the control of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads—powerful trunk lines whose interests are wholly divergent from the New England lines, and which were choking off the development of New England's transportation business all the while.

Mr. Morgan says that his father opposed the coming of the Grand Trunk to Boston because he believed that the building of this road into New England would be duplicating expensive facilities on which New England would be obliged to pay the interest. But there was never any necessity of the Grand Trunk to build into New England if Mr. Morgan, with his New York Central and Pennsylvania lines, had permitted the New Haven to make proper arrangements for the joint use of tracks with the Grand Trunk.

Mr. Mellen testified that he always, as a railroad man, believed that it was for the best interest of New England to allow the Grand Trunk to come into Boston over its lines. Thus New England would get the benefit of cheap rates from the West over the Canadian trunk lines.

But, said Mr. Mellen, the large stock ownership which the New York Central, a Morgan road, and the Pennsylvania and the American Express Company, a New York Central-Ledyard-Morgan enterprise, had in the New Haven road, enabled them to prevent the New Haven from entering into an agreement with the Grand Trunk by which New England could have obtained the benefit of the service of the Canadian railroad, without being burdened with the cost of new railroad construction.

The fact that the New Haven was controlled by Morgan and by the American Express Company and by the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroads is a complete answer to the barefaced pretence which Morgan now makes that his father was interested in a transportation monopoly in New England in order that New England might more powerfully compete with the other sections of the country.

New England will lie helpless in the hands of the other sections of the country so long as her railroads are controlled by the New York Central or by the Pennsylvania, and the New England railroad question will never be settled until the New York Central and the Pennsylvania shall be obliged to sell their holdings and clear away from their connection with the New Haven. New England business will be diverted over those lines so long as they control a New England railroad.

Mr. Mellen has rendered a great public service in his testimony, and the AMERICAN hopes that he will continue to give the public the benefit of his knowledge and experience from time to time. With his extraordinary knowledge and his ability to state things in an interesting way, he has the power to serve where the public most needs such service.

The Launching of the Atlantic Shows Boston Is Waking Up

It ought to delight the people of Boston to see the launching of the Atlantic, and to contemplate the near approach of the launching of her sister ship, the Pacific, by the Emery Steamship Company of Boston. If anybody believes that Boston is not waking up, that she is not putting forth some effort to recover her old prestige on the ocean, this event will give them courage.

Mr. Randall, president of the Emery Steamship Company, said things full of hope to the future of Boston's commerce:

"The Atlantic, launched today, is the first of a fleet of steamships which the Emery Steamship Company intends to build to help develop the trade of the port of Boston. Before very long I expect to see eight vessels plying between Boston on one side of the continent and Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle on the other side.

"The lumber of the Oregon forests will be brought direct to Boston through the Panama Canal, and on property secured on the banks of the Mystic River at Charlestown there will be erected immense planing mills so that the lumber will be distributed directly from Boston to all parts of New England and even as far West as Chicago.

"The terminal property secured by the Emery Steamship Company represents a value of $600,000, and we expect it to be one of the finest as well as one of the busiest parts of the Boston shore front. Before long Boston will see steamships entering and leaving port, to and from the Pacific Coast, every two weeks or ten days."

What a pity it is that the President's policy of taxing the ships which will use the great Panama Canal, in violation of his solemn pledge to the American people, will add such an unnecessary burden to this new-born, infant commerce.

Mr. Randall is one of the representatives of the shipping interests of New England who appeared before the Congressional Committee in protest against the President's policy. But he has the courage to believe that a mistaken policy will not long prevail.

The AMERICAN is confident that it speaks for all New England when it wishes this steamship company all the success which its enterprising spirit deserves, and which the enterprising spirit of the old days of our commercial supremacy won for us on every sea and in every port of the world.

How Bill Got Along

WHEN Bill arrived at the branch house of the firm the first thing that impressed him was the antiquated system of doing business in the office. The manager, an old man, who had been with the firm many years, at first resented Bill's coming out there to wake things up or to "brighten up the infield a bit," as Bill called it.

The clerks all seemed dopey and stood around talking about most anything except what they were hired for. When Bill asked to see the advertising account, the manager told him he would find it very small, as he believed a firm as old as this one and as well known, didn't need to advertise much.

"Yes," said Bill, "every one knows a chicken lays an egg, but if the hen didn't cackle at the time she did it, they might forget about it. So I think the first thing we had better do is to look into the best advertising mediums and let the people know what we have to sell."

Then Bill started on a systematic housecleaning, and at the end of three months their business had more than doubled and was getting better every day.

Bill got a letter from the boss in Boston about this time, telling him what his new salary was to be and that he was to return when he thought he had things running the way he wanted them. This Bill did about a month afterward.

Stopping off at his home town on his way, he and Emily were married.

Jim! Oh, Jim is about the same as he used to be—

"Here you have a happy home, good job and everything you want, while I am just about where I was when we both started. Gee! You're a lucky guy."

"Oh, yes, Jim, I guess I'm pretty LUCKY all right. Come out and see us some time."—H. C.

THE END.

King at 15, Conqueror at 18

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

TWO hundred and seventeen years ago a boy of fifteen became King of Sweden, taking the name of Charles XII., and then and there began the wildest, strangest career that history gives us any account of.

When he had been King about three years, Charles learned one day, while out hunting, that three monarchs, Frederick of Denmark, Augustus of Poland, and Peter the Great of Russia, had secretly combined to rob him of his throne and dismember his kingdom.

That very minute Charles became a new being. In an instant the boy was a man.

And he kept his word. He pounced first upon the King of Poland, and in six weeks had him flat on his back, begging for mercy. In the meantime, Peter the Great appeared before Narva with an army of 100,000 men and 150 cannon. Against this huge force Charles marched his little army of 8,000 men—4,000 infantry and 4,000 horse—and won one of the most brilliant victories in all the annals of war.

With such fury did the boy King hurl his little handful of men against the Muscovite hordes that 20,000 of them surrendered in a body —to escape annihilation.

But nature is a chronic joker, and somewhere on her brightest gentlemen she is sure to hang the cap and bells, the insignia of the fool. With all his brilliancy, Charles lacked common sense. He did not know when and where to stop. Infatuated with the dream of destroying the Muscovite, whom he had beaten so easily at Narva, he invaded the Czar's inhospitable dominions, lost thousands of his men from cold and hunger, and was finally overwhelmed on "dread Poltowa's Day," July 8, 1709.

Do You Believe in God?

Certain Unhappy People Wonder How Any Intelligent Human Being Can Believe in the Divinity—Are You One of These?

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

A WOMAN has lost her only child; a man has lost his possessions in an earthquake. They wonder how any intelligent human being can believe in God.

"What do you know about God?" they ask.

No so much as many great ones know, yet more and more with each passing year, so that life grows more radiant with each step forward toward the final goal. For ever upon the path shines the smile of Him I know to be God.

I know this earth is but one room in my Father's Mansion, and that whatever my experience may be in this, they are but to prepare me to enter larger rooms.

Experience is the object of all life.

We came from the Great All Source, and we are returning to it. That we can make the journey for ourselves and others happier and more beautiful by an absolute, unswerving faith in the God of Love back of all things I know.

That a belief in our own divine origin and our oneness with God will mold circumstances and turn seeming evil to good * also know. But the way to such molding is long and the path steep, because it leads over the boulders of self, and we must chisel our own stairway through the rocks. But God awaits us at the summit.

The great trouble with most of us is that we magnify our petty lesser selves and desires and tasks, and ignore our real selves, and then doubt the existence of a God because our lesser selves suffer some disappointment or pain, which need not have come to us if we had recognized the divinity within.

God made millions of worlds—millions of planets. No man can make one or even explain how the beginning began. Therefore the most reasonable explanation is that He whom we call God made all.

The magnificence of this vast universe is beyond the scope of human intellect.

One glance through a telescope at the heavens is enough to make the most brilliant being on earth sink back in unutterable awe.

Yet poor, petty creatures are daily and hourly sitting in judgment on the Creator of All Things because a hailstorm destroyed a harvest or a lightning stroke killed a cow, or death claimed a child, or a thief robbed the house.

Be still and be ashamed, O petty cavilers!

Look up and out at the glory of creation, and know that God lives, and that you are part and parcel of Him, and nothing can befall you once you acknowledge this truth that all is for ultimate and universal good.

God is Love.

"God is near you, with you, in you. There dwells within us a holy spirit, the watcher and guardian of all we do, good or bad. According as we deal with Him so He deals with us."

Epictetus, a Greek philosopher and a man of great wisdom, who lived a hundred years after Christ, said:

"Be always ready to resign the blessings which God's providence has lent you for a while. Never say anything about 'I have lost it.' Is your child dead? It has been restored. Is your wife dead? She has been restored. Has your estate been taken from you? Has not this, then, also been restored? But he who has taken it from me is a bad man. But what is it to you by whose hands the giver demanded it back?

In every age there are a few souls who listen to great truths like these and realize that they need only live these truths to be at peace with God and man.

Vast and cumbersome and blind creeds seem to be the machinery by which the masses of the world move.

And slow is that movement.

It is pitiful to think of the miserable, fear-wrecked beings who have wept bitter tears over dreary dogmas, trying to find "illumination."

Trying to reconcile the irreconcilable and paradoxical statements of supposed teachers, when all they needed to obtain light, happiness and hope was the old, old truth, "God is near you, with you, in you."

Live to this thought and you will need no other religion.

Niagara Doomed—to the Service of Man

By ELBERT HUBBARD

ELECTRICITY as a business is practically in its infancy.

When mankind is delivered from the toil and moil and sweat and travail of unkind conditions it will be through the utilization of the "current."

Just what electricity is, the scientists do not tell us. We assume there is just one thing in the world and that is energy. This energy takes a myriad of forms. Man is the highest product of energy.

Call it Divine Energy, if you wish.

Electricity occupies the twilight zone between the spiritual and the physical. When electric energy is at last analyzed, dissected, placed on the microscopic slide and weighed on the scales, it will be found to be the very secret of life.

So far, electricity is the jealous secret of Deity.

When man becomes worthy, Deity perhaps will share this secret with him. Then, indeed, will we "be as gods."

* * *

Electricity is the passing of power from one form into another. In this respect it is a method of transportation, rather than a thing.

The terrestrial program consists of simply two items—absorption and dissipation, receiving and giving, coming and going.

Everything is in motion. Through electricity we transmit energy, dividing it up into units, using it to run a churn, a sewing machine, a piano, or to produce heat a thousand times as intense as combustion supplies.

The limit to electrical development, through increased use of electricity and electrical appliances, is absolutely unthinkable.

Up to this time the education of the public to the use of electricity has been "up" a matter of "natural selection"—hit or miss—contacts as catch can—now you see it and now you don't.

Electricity, through giving us quick transportation and instant communication, is binding the people of the world together in a common bond. It looks as if the brotherhood of man would not forever be but a barren ideality, sung by poets and prayed for by preachers.

Behind the idea of brotherhood we now have commercial organization on a broad, generous, far-reaching, friendly plane, with ways and means at its disposal beyond the dreams of avarice.

Surely we live in great times!

* * *

Our friends who are fighting to preserve Niagara in its primal form are engaged in a hopeless task. As a place for astonishing bridal couples, Niagara is doomed.

The excursion will run, but it will be to see a beauty vaster far and more bewildering than this sheet of water hastening on the dictum of the late Sir Isaac Newton to Lake Ontario.

Before the coal is gone, we must learn to harness this energy and transmute it into heat and light, and a power which, without dirt, ashes or smoke, will do the work of five million men and as many women.

To preserve our Illinois prairie, with its waving blue upland grass and forests of rosin weed, used to be my fondest ambition.

But now, Illinois has been placed under the dominion of the plow, her prairies help feed the world, and have more than once staved off starvation in India, and kept hunger at bay in Russia.

Niagara, and all of our great waterways will be used, of necessity, for the purposes of creation —light, heat and power, with all the comforts, conveniences and luxuries that man needs for his mental and spiritual unfoldment.

Niagara Falls will not be really worth visiting until the cunning of man's brain has utilized every horsepower of that falling weight, not for the Glory of God, but for the Service of Man.

It fastens my faith to the Sons of Jove!
